Silver mine missing now number 58

KELLOGG, Idaho (AP) — Officials of the nation's richest silver mine early today upped the number of men missing in a fire deep in the earth to 58.

Marvin C. Chase, general manager of Sunshine Mining Co., said the addition of 11 names to the roll of missing came after "an exhaustive name-by-name study of the company's personnel list."

Chase said the number of confirmed dead from the fire which broke out in the mine last Tuesday remains at 35. One hundred and eight men escaped.

Meanwhile, a power failure delayed discovery of the fate of the missing men, who have been unheard from since the fire started, and smoke and carbon monoxide gas filled the mine.

Chase said Sunday the power outage and an exhaust fan malfunction which allowed some buildup of fumes near the shaft ended hope of progress before today.

Outside the mine, families of the missing continued their vigil into the sixth day, holding on to a weakening thread of hope that the men still are alive.

The Steel Workers of America, which represents most of the miners here, said it is asking its president to use his influence to obtain a congressional investigation of the tragedy.

Frank S. McKee, director of the union's western district, said the company had given its miners inadequate knowledge of escape routes and inadequate self-rescue equipment.

Crucial meeting on Vietnam

Nixon calls top advisers

By GAYLORD SHAW

WASHINGTON (AP) — With his Moscow summit perhaps swaying in the balance, President Nixon summoned his highest-level advisers to the White House today for a crucial policy-making meeting on Vietnam.

The urgency of the National Security Council meeting was underscored by Nixon's orders for Secretary of State William P. Rogers to interrupt his tour of European capitals to return to the United States for the session.

There was no official indication of whether the President had already made his decision, or whether he was still considering a set of options designed to stem the current North Vietnamese offensive and begin meaningful Vietnam peace talks.

The options reportedly range from a naval blockade of Haiphong Harbor to renewed bombing of military targets in the Hanoi and Haiphong areas to possible dispatch of Marines now on Navy ships in the China Sea to protect U.S. installations and troops in the beleaguered Hue region.

The National Security Council meets irregularly and only when major decisions are in the making. Its staff is headed by presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger and its members include the secretaries of State and Defense, the vice president, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and the director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Today's meeting comes precisely two weeks before Nixon is scheduled to arrive in Moscow for the week of summit talks with Soviet leaders.

While officials at the White House, State Department and elsewhere have attempted to keep the Vietnam crisis separate from the Moscow summit, the two are obviously linked.

Kissinger, for example, talked extensively about Vietnam when he met two weeks ago in Moscow with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev. Kissinger's secret Moscow journey was followed a week later by a quick, clandestine trip to Paris where he met with North Vietnamese negotiator Le Duc Tho.

Two days after that the United States and South Vietnam for the second time suspended the public peace talks.

Another link between the Soviets and the Vietnam situation is the steady supply of equipment that Moscow has sent to Hanoi.

When the Soviet Union said four of its ships were damaged during U.S. bombing raids on Haiphong Harbor a month ago, Washington replied that any such damage was regrettable, if it in fact occurred. But the State Department added that "countries which supply offensive weapons equipment to the North Vietnamese and enable them to mount an invasion of South Vietnam share responsibility."

Planes fly raids on Hanoi area

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. warplanes returned to the Hanoi area today for the first time in three weeks and bombed fuel and supply depots and other military targets on the edges of the North Vietnamese capital, reliable American sources reported.

The U.S. Navy planes from carriers in the Tonkin Gulf shot down several North Vietnamese MIG interceptors, the sources said.

The U.S. Command said it would have no immediate comment, nor was there any report of U.S. losses.

Sources said the first raids on the Hanoi area since April 16 were ordered by President Nixon.

They were launched about mid-morning, a few hours before Nixon was to meet with the National Security Council in Washington to discuss actions that might slow the 40-day-old North Vietnamese offensive in South Vietnam and force Hanoi to enter into meaningful peace negotiations.

On the battlefronts in South Vietnam, North Vietnamese troops poured hundreds of shells into bases in the central highlands, and fighting erupted anew for control of Highway 14 between Pleiku and Kontum.

The northernmost defense line 20 miles north of Hue continued to hold.

A U.S. officer said that American planes have knocked out all 20 bridges along Highway 1 in the 30 miles between the northern defense line and the demilitarized zone.

Informants said U.S. fighter-bombers have been averaging about 125 strikes per day over North Vietnam.

The North Vietnamese Foreign Ministry said U.S. planes bombed six North Vietnamese provinces Sunday, coming within 50 miles of Hanoi and Haiphong and causing extensive civilian casualties and damage.

The report broadcast by Radio Hanoi, said factories, schools, markets, and agricultural cooperatives were hit in Ninh Binh, Thanh Hoa, Nghe An, Ha Tinh, Nam Ha and Quang Binh provinces.

Another Hanoi broadcast claimed that five U.S. planes were shot down Saturday and Sunday.

U.S. B52 bombers continued hammering at enemy targets across South Vietnam. Ground troops who went into one B52 target area in the Mekong Delta reported indications that 100 enemy were killed.

The South Vietnamese command reported a "slight increase" in enemy activity near Hue.

Sporadic clashes continued north of Saigon on the way to besieged An Loc, and An Loc itself was heavily shelled.

Saigon forces feel they can repel raid

By PETER ARNETT
and
HORST FAAS

SAIGON (AP) — An eerie calm prevails in the bustling villages and market towns around Saigon.

Extensive visits to the half dozen provinces surrounding the South Vietnamese capital indicate it is not an immediate target.

But for the first time in several years the North Vietnamese Army — the NVA — has almost free rein over the Cambodian provinces to the west and the unpopulated jungles to the north that have been the traditional staging areas for attacks on Saigon.

The enemy's intentions are just not known. All is guess work. Since the big reduction in American forces, there has been a great setback in the gathering of intelligence.

Whatever the timetable, American advisers and South Vietnamese officials in the protective belt of provinces around Saigon feel confident they can ring the alarms bells when the enemy makes his move.

While the militia forces seem well geared to alert Saigon to a massive infiltration attempt, they are no match for regular North Vietnamese infantry and sophisticated weaponry. The enthusiasm of the militia-men is new, but their little outposts look like relics of the days long ago when the local Viet Cong fought with homemade shotguns and punj staves.

The big question mark in case of a conventional attack on Saigon is whether the government has the reserves available and the ability to commit them immediately.

"At the time of the Tet offensive in 1968 we had 49 American infantry battalions available to rescue Saigon," said an American adviser. "Now they're all gone."

At this very moment, almost all national reserve troops — the airborne and marine divisions — are committed to the northern battlefields. Many of them are taking crippling casualties.

Some of the troops always stationed around Saigon are tied up in the stalemate siege of An Loc, 60 miles north of the capital. Holding out in An Loc is being presented as a victory for the South Vietnamese Army. But some American observers fear that this grinding action has sidelined the divisions that may some day soon be needed in Saigon.

One colonel who fought as a captain 10 years ago along the Saigon River has walked over this same battleground numerous times since then.

"I just flew over a couple of bunkers that we tried to blow up on New Year's night 1968," he said. "When I was back with the U.S. 1st Division we bulldozed the place. I just saw the bunkers right back in the same spot, but the trouble is no friendlies ever go near them now."

13 POW's die in rebellion in S. Vietnam

SAIGON (AP) — Thirteen prisoners of war were killed and 56 wounded in a brief weekend rebellion at South Vietnam's largest POW camp on Phu Quoc Island, government military spokesmen said Monday.

Two officers and two military police guards also were reportedly injured in the disturbance. They had entered one of the dormitory buildings to make a check and were jumped and beaten by prisoners.

Other guards outside fired warnings shots but could not stop the disturbance, so they fired on the prisoners, the spokesmen said.

Earlier in the day, there was a minor confrontation between several prisoners and guards when the POWs refused to go to their assigned area of the camp.

Phu Quoc, located 10 miles off the coast in the Gulf of Thailand, houses about 26,000 prisoners of war, almost all of them North Vietnamese.

ing from 2,600 to 3,200.

Over-all, investigators figured the annual cost to the taxpayers at $75 million.

The proposed new law aims to end secrecy, proliferation, duplication and a wasted effort.

There would be a two-year self-destruct mechanism to do away with unneeded boards after their work is done.

OMB officials testified against the legislation. They said that, while they agree with its general objective, they advocate administrative action instead of a new law.

OMB has been promising a directive for more than two years and has assigned just one man to the managing job, operations committee chairman Chet Holifield said.

Advisory groups

Committee reform sought

By CARL C. CRAFT
WASHINGTON (AP) — Who knows what advisory panels are in bureaucratic shadows whispering information in government ears? The public doesn't now, but would under a proposed new law opposed by the administration.

Are costly reports simply filed and forgotten, does anyone keep track of who studies what, do old boards hang on after their jobs are done, is there any follow-up on proposals of presidential panels?

These and other problems involving the power and performance of governmental advisory groups are addressed in legislation due to reach the House floor for action Tuesday.

During lengthy investigations, the House Government

Operations Committee uncovered an uncontrolled and essentially unrecorded population explosion of advisory committees throughout the federal bureaucracy.

The panels have spread so far and so deep that officials could supply Congress with no precise tally on them with estimates rang-

What will Nixon do?

Suspense in Washington 'thick'

By LEWIS GULICK
WASHINGTON (AP) — Suspense and speculation as to "what will Nixon do" hung thick over Washington today as the President convened the National Security Council under extraordinary circumstances.

One of the extraordinary circumstances was Nixon's mid-stream interruption of William P. Rogers' European journey so the Secretary of State could attend the top-level policy parley.

Since Rogers indicated he intends to hurry right back to Europe afterwards, this spurred speculation that:

—Nixon is shaping a new diplomatic move along with any military step-up in Vietnam, so he wanted the Secretary of State on hand.

—Nixon still intends to keep his Moscow visit date two weeks hence. Otherwise he would have called off the remainder of Rogers' talks with the European allies, which were scheduled as a preliminary to the U.S.-Soviet summit.

But this admittedly was speculation. The few insiders directly privy to Nixon's thinking weren't talking.

The suspense has been building up with each report of further North Vietnamese advances into South Vietnam and White House declarations of presidential determination to bar the invaders from taking over the South by force.

Nixon has warned Hanoi and, in a more veiled way, the Soviet Union. He has beefed up American air power in Southeast Asia. He briefly reopened the Paris talks last week and dispatched adviser Henry A. Kissinger to see North Vietnamese Le Duc Tho.

But the President has yet to specify just what he would do if the invasion continues and the peace talks broke down, as they have. And with small military measures seemingly insufficient to turn the tide, the Nixon watchers are guessing about big moves: stepped-up

Others go as expected

GOP endorses minister to run against Mondale

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Minnesota Republicans have selected the Rev. Philip Hansen, a Lutheran minister and a novice politician, to oppose Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn.

Hansen's endorsement came at a special GOP State Convention Sunday at St. Cloud called solely to give the Republican candidate an early start in his campaign against the popular Mondale.

Other congressional endorsements went as expected at party district conventions across the state during the weekend.

Hansen, who said he lost 23 pounds while trying to gather support over the past weeks, was endorsed on the second ballot.

He gathered 923 votes to 492 for James Hill, Duluth, and 7 for Ronald J. Kelly, Apple Valley. Hansen needed 890 votes, or 60 per cent of those attending the convention.

First ballot voting gave Hansen 825, Hill 557 and Kelly 30 with 72 abstentions.

The choice of Hansen came only after an unsuccessful bid by some delegates to draft GOP National Committeeman Rudy Boschwitz for the Senate race.

A popular figure in the party, Boschwitz had to make two trips to the microphone before he could convince delegates he did not want the endorsement.

Hansen's endorsement means he will get party funds and recognition as the preferred candidate. His actual nomination for the November election requires that he win in the Sept. 12 primary in case some other Republicans also file.

Hansen, 44, is a native of Milaca and lives in Roseville. Married and the father of two, he has headed an alcohol and drug treatment unit at Northwestern Hospital in Minneapolis for the past two years.

He told delegates he can be a "cohesive element" in Minnesota and blamed Mondale for being a polarizing influence. He also charged that Mondale is a down-the-line voter for organized labor.

Hill, 38, a computer salesman for the IBM Corp., won support largely from the counties of the 8th District. After Hansen's vote had cleared the 60 per cent hurdle, Hill moved to make it unanimous.

The GOP also endorsed P. Kenneth Peterson, Minneapolis, for reelection to the Minnesota Public Service Commission. He was unopposed.

At party district conventions, a pair of college teachers were endorsed by their respective parties to run for the U.S. House.

Richard Nolan, 28, Little Falls, was named by 6th District DFLers in Montevideo, Sunday, to run against incumbent Rep. John Zwach. Nolan is a state representative and an instructor at St. John's University, Collegeville.

Allan H. Davison, 32, was picked by 5th District Republicans in Minneapolis to oppose Rep. Donald Fraser in November. Davison has taught at Augsburg and Macalester Colleges.

Delegates to the 2nd District convention at New Ulm chose Charles Turnbull, an administrator at the state hospital at St. Peter, to oppose Republican Ancher Nelsen.

Democrats supported incumbent Congressman Joseph Karth in the 4th District, Fraser in the 5th and John Blatnik in the 8th. DFLers have no candidate against Republican Albert Quie in the 1st.

Republicans in the 3rd District endorsed Rep. William Frenzel for a second term.

Former Minnesota Atty. Gen. Douglas Head stepped back into politics when he was elected an alternate to the national convention during the GOP 5th District meeting. Both GOP conventions gave all their delegate support to President Nixon.

Humphrey to get only slim delegate margin?

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sen. Hubert Humphrey appeared headed for only a slim majority of Minnesota's delegates to the Democratic National Convention after weekend Democratic-Farmer-Labor conventions in his home state.

Humphrey gathered 20 delegates from the six conventions, but a liberal coalition headed by Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota and Rep. Shirley Chisholm of New York pulled in 15. Four delegates were uncommitted.

Final tally of the state's eight districts showed 26 delegates for Humphrey and 20 for the coalition—4 for McGovern and 6 for Chisholm. Five were uncommitted. The remaining 13 of the state's allotted 64 delegates will be selected at the state DFL Convention June 9 at Rochester.

Humphrey is expected to hold about a 34-30 advantage when the uncommitted delegates make known their preferences. Humphrey's share of the national delegation will be smaller than appeared likely several weeks ago, largely because a winner-take-all election procedure was replaced by proportional representation of delegates.

State DFL Chairman Richard Moe said the delegate support went about as had been predicted by political observers and said he was "thankful" that the conventions were free of the bitterness that marked the 1968 campaign.

Humphrey picked up four delegates from the 6th District convention in Montevideo while one went to McGovern and one is expected to back Chisholm.

At the 8th District meeting in Duluth, Humphrey was voted five delegates with one for the coalition and one uncommitted.

The 8th District convention faced a challenge of 69 women who were against the seating of delegations from Cook and St. Louis counties but this was turned down when the credential committee's report was adopted. The report said the committee could find no legal basis for upholding the challenge on the grounds it violated the Democratic party guidelines.

In New Ulm, the 2nd District convention yielded three delegates for Humphrey and two for McGovern with one uncommitted.

McGovern picked up three delegates, Humphrey two delegates and one remained uncommitted at the 5th District convention in Minneapolis.

Peace Coalition forces won four delegates and Humphrey supporters gained three at the 4th District convention in St. Paul. Two of the coalition delegates are in the McGovern camp and two supported Chisholm.

Meeting in Rochester, the 1st District convention gave Humphrey three of its six delegates. McGovern forces received a pair of national delegates and the other was for Mrs. Chisholm.

And triumphs

Humphrey avoids use of television

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey has won the last three major Democratic presidential primaries without using television spots — the slick 30 and 60 second commercials most candidates feel they need to win.

Since the Wisconsin primary, Humphrey has bought television time only to do telephone question-and-answer shows. It is an inexpensive format that his ranking media expert says presents Humphrey at his best.

"Nobody, just nobody, does this kind of program as well as Humphrey," said D. J. Leary, national media consultant for the Humphrey campaign. "He is doing a one-on-one with the viewer. It is direct communication. It works."

Humphrey spent less than $20,000 or two call-in shows during the Ohio primary. Sen. George S. McGovern reportedly spent more than $100,000 in Ohio on television primarily for television spots. Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace used spot commercials extensively during the Indiana primary campaign.

In the Florida primary, Humphrey did use spot commercials. "Everybody was on the ballot," Leary explained. "There were 12 candidates. What we were faced with was trying to separate our candidate from the pack."

There was no political reason or economic justification for using spots in the Pennsylvania, Indiana and Ohio primaries, said Leary. "A half-hour talk show costs about the same as two one-minute spots," he said.

Humphrey has used the call-in television format for many years but not always with the success he apparently enjoys with it this year.

In the 1960 West Virginia primary, he did a question-and-answer show that included on-the-air complaints about tying up party lines and blocking emergency calls. John F. Kennedy won the election and was on his way to the presidency.

Humphrey and Richard Nixon both did televised call-in shows on the eve of the 1968 presidential election. Leary insisted Humphrey's show was superior. Nixon was elected.

Democratic friction seen

Lucey chosen chairman of Wisconsin delegation

By ARTHUR L. SRB MILWAUKEE (AP) — Gov. Patrick J. Lucey has been chosen a chairman of Wisconsin's delegation to the Democratic National Convention amid signs of hostility between party newcomers and veterans.

A former member of the party's national committee likened the atmosphere at Saturday's delegate-selecting meeting to the friction which shadowed the state's Democrats four years ago.

Lucey, having remained neutral until the state's April 4 presidential preference primary, was named a co-chairman by the delegates who will represent Sen. George S. McGovern at the convention.

The South Dakota senator won seven of the state's congressional-district primary contests, earning 43 delegate votes. Those 43 delegates chose Saturday the state's 11 at-large delegates, which also are committed to McGovern.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., won the state's 13 remaining delegates in the primary, and his supporters caucused privately during most of the weekend meeting.

Party regulars frequently looked upon the boisterous McGovern supporters as newcomers.

"We've never seen some of these people before," John Anderson of Stevens Point, a Humphrey delegate, said.

"They are coming out of the woodwork."

Janelle Swed of Sherwood, a former member of the party's national committee, expressed fear the McGovern-dominated delegation may lack party loyalty, which she said similarly was lacking in 1968 when dissidents led a delegation won by Eugene J. McCarthy.

Mrs. Swed called it a "trend of 1968: the gloating and dissimilarity."

She said she will attend the convention in Miami Beach to work for Humphrey, but not as a delegate.

Donald O. Peterson, leader of the 1968 McCarthy delegation but a supporter of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie this season, waived his convention privilege for voting honors.

Humphrey takes half of 1st District DFL delegate seats

ROCHESTER, Minn. — Supporters of Minnesota Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey obtained three of six delegate seats to the Democratic National Convention in balloting at the 1st District DFL Convention here Saturday.

Two of the three remaining seats were pledged to South Dakota Sen. George McGovern, with the remaining seat held by a supporter of New York Congresswoman Shirley Chisholm.

One of the six national convention delegates and two of the four alternates are from Winona.

ATTENDING the National Convention in Miami, Fla., July 10 will be:

Delegates: Thomas (Tim) Stoltman, 658 W. Wabasha St., Winona; Mrs. Opa Peterson, Stillwater, and Darrel Miller, Pine Island (Humphrey); John Oldendorf, West St. Paul, and Miss Ellen Beard, Northfield (McGovern), and Mrs. Rita Moosebrugger, Stillwater (Chisholm).

Alternates: Mrs. Alice Keller, 358 Collegeview, Winona, and Tom Novak, Hastings (Humphrey), and Doug Griffith, Marine on the St. Croix, and Uric Scott, 1176 W. 5th St., Winona (McGovern).

The delegate list adheres to the McGovern - Fraser guidelines that assure adequate representation for women and young people. Half of the delegates are women, and two of the six — Stoltman and Miss Beard — fall in the youth category.

All eight of the state's DFL district conventions completed delegate selection this weekend, electing 51 of the state's 64 national delegates. The remaining 13 delegates will be elected at the state convention in Rochester June 9-11.

The 2½-day festival, dedicated to the advancement of nonviolence, was sponsored by the "Introduction to Peace" course offered jointly by the College of Saint Teresa and Winona State college.

It concluded about 6 p.m. Sunday.

About 150 of the people attending spent the entire weekend on the bluffside farm, sleeping in tents and helping O'Grady build a field road and clear some woodland for pasture.

O'Grady's barn also received a coat of paint, and a mural planned for one side was nearly finished and is slated for completion this week.

Discussions Saturday night centered on a presentation by a religious group called Baha'i, and an anti-war slide presentation called "The Automated Battlefield."

A worship service Sunday morning was led by Baha'i, The Rev. John Preston of Winona's United Campus Ministry and the Rev. John Czaplewski, Winona.

After most visitors had left Sunday, members of the peace course held a short ceremony atop a bluff facing the Mississippi River and implanted a wooden sword in the ground.

The gathering, at the Marvin O'Grady farm two miles north of here, had earlier brought quaking fears of a "rock festival" from the area, but the weekend was completed without incident and without a complaint from neighbors or law enforcement officials.

LAKE CITY, Minn. — Personnel from the Minneapolis, Minn., headquarters of Coast to Coast Stores, and Oklahoma City, Okla., headquarters of C. R. Anthony Co., are in Lake City today going over inventories to determine the amount of loss in the fire Saturday which completely destroyed both stores.

The cause of the fire has not been determined, according to assistant fire chief Dallas Eggenberger.

Dick L. Mills, president of the Lake City Savings and Loan Association, the firm that owned the destroyed building, said today he was fully confident the firm would rebuild, although it would have to be an official decision.

MILLS set the building loss at about $100,000, and said the building was covered by insurance.

Roy Jones, manager of Anthony's Department Store, said he thought the loss of merchandise would be between $75,000 and $80,000, but the figure would not be available until the inventory was made. "If the building is rebuilt, Anthony's hope to be in and back in business," Jones said. The stock was insured.

William Wohlers, owner of the Coast to Coast Store, said he would not set an estimate of damage until the inventory was taken. The goods were insured, he said.

According to Eggenberger, the Lake City fire department was at the scene at 5:15 a.m. The fire was discovered at about 5 a.m. by an unidentified man who saw smoke coming from the windows and notified the sheriff's office, he said.

SMOKE was coming from the windows of Anthony's store when the firemen arrived so they entered that building first, he said, then determined the fire had apparently started in the Coast to Coast store.

There was so much smoke in the building it could not be determined where the fire had originated, Eggenberger said. He believed it was traveling up between the walls by that time.

The Red Wing and Wabasha fire departments were called for assistance, and by 8:30 a.m. the fire had been stopped from spreading, Eggenberger said. The truck from Wabasha stayed until about noon, and the two trucks from Red Wing until mid-afternoon.

Lake City firemen were at the scene until about 6 p.m., cleaning up the debris and watching the smoldering fire.

A Red Wing fireman received a cut on the hand, had it treated at the Lake City Municipal Hospital and returned to the fire, a Lake City fireman, Bill

Dielenbroch, was overcome by the smoke and treated and later released from the hospital.

MILLS said the savings and loan building had some water seepage "here and there" and all important records were moved out of the building during the fire. The firm was open for business as usual today.

Mrs. M. G. Farrington, owner of the Ben Franklin Store, said today the store merchandise had received some smoke and water damage. The merchandise is insured, she said, and the store will not be opened until the amount of damage is determined. The insurance adjuster was coming today.

Keep idealism, speaker tells SMC graduates

By ROSE KODET
Daily News Staff Writer

"Do not lose the idealism that has carried you this far," urged C. Bernard Carey Sunday at St. Mary's College commencement.

"You have the talent, you have the responsibility and you have the duty" to constantly participate in your government, he added.

Carey, a 1956 graduate of St. Mary's, addressed about 500 persons at the college fieldhouse. About 100, of the 192 students receiving bachelor of arts and master's degrees, participated in the 47th annual commencement.

Carey is chief of the special prosecution division of the Illinois attorney general's office.

CAREY SAID the "greatest insurance this country has to continue to elect responsible men to government" is the activeness of its youth.

"It is far better to have noisy debate," he said than to have an apathetic attitude prevail. The noisy debates of this generation have redirected the thought of the nation to ecological issues and away from war toward peace, he added.

The speech given by Carey was not the one he had prepared a few weeks ago, he said. With the death of J. Edgar Hoover, he said he thought it more appropriate to include something about law in his speech.

Carey, who spent five years as a special agent for the FBI, said Hoover insisted his men be "above board, above suspicion and the best." He added that Hoover also insisted they pay the best.

Concerning Hoover, Carey indicated the FBI director insisted every individual be treated with the dignity to which he is entitled. He added that FBI agents were instructing persons of their rights "long before the Miranda warning became the law of the land."

An honorary degree of bachelor of arts in social sciences was awarded to Carl J. Briese, captain of the Rochester police department juvenile division, in recognition of his 33 years as a law enforcement officer in work with Rochester youth and for his leadership in encouraging education and training for members of the Rochester police force.

IN THE citation presented, Briese, it stated that his 33 years of experience educated him the way "no book or school could."

Francis Bobalek, Midland, Mich., received a bachelor's degree after completing degree requirements under the nongraduate assistance program adopted by the St. Mary's Alumni Association.

Degrees were conferred by C. Bernard Jacobs, chairman of the St. Mary's board of trustees.

Continue search for missing boater

The search for a rural Fountain City man continues today as the Winona County sheriff's office resumed dragging operations this morning in the Mississippi River.

Missing and presumed drowned following a boating accident Saturday evening is David Malewicki, 26.

According to Assistant Police Chief John Scherer, Arthur Konter, 866 E. 3rd St., came to the police station at 8:30 p.m. Saturday to report an unoccupied 14-foot, aluminum boat floating down the river.

When police arrived at the scene, at the foot of Center Street, four men were pulling the boat to shore.

THE RIGHT SIDE of the boat was caved in and upon closer investigation it was discovered two pieces of bark had been forced into the side of the boat.

Police theorized that the boat struck a tree stump in the water.

The sheriff's office was called along with William Gannaway, game warden and two Wisconsin game wardens to aid in the search for the man. The men, along with several unidentified persons, searched fruitlessly until 2 a.m. Sunday. The search was resumed Sunday and continues through today by the sheriff's office.

According to Sheriff Helmer Weinmann, dragging the river at this particular time of year is difficult because of the fast current due to high water and debris in the water. Weinmann added there are many tree stumps, branches and other foliage in the water.

Mrs. Malewicki identified the boat as that of her husband's Saturday night. When her husband did not come home about 10 p.m., police said she asked a friend to check into the situation and then learned her husband had apparently drowned.

ACCORDING to Ronald Pronitzinski, 507 E. 3rd St., he and David Donnfeld, 112 Laird St., assisted two Illinois men in bringing the capsized boat to shore and said the time was about 7 p.m.

He added that some of the fishing equipment was still attached to the inside of the boat.

According to Weinmann, the boat and the 40 horsepower motor had been purchased by Malewicki only three days before the accident.

Tony Bennett sings no blues

By EARL WILSON
NEW YORK — Tony Bennett, who sings, is also talking now, gushing out words without music about being new king of Las Vegas. "It's an upset . . . broke everybody's record . . . Presley's . . . Streisand's . . . like a thousand customers more than anybody else in town," Tony whoops into the phone from the Las Vegas Hilton International.

"I got a new manager" — Derek Boulton of London — "and my whole career is changed. Lena Horne gave me some advice, she said, 'Get a manager that loves you.' I'd known Boulton as a friend for 20 years . . ."

Boulton got him a TV show in England, got Charlie Chaplin's o.k. to use 4 minutes of film from "Modern Times."

"No, I never met Charlie Chaplin. I figured he did it because I sold so many records of 'Smiles' that he wrote for the film."

Earl Wilson

"And of course I'm married to Sandy Grant and we have little Joanna . . ."

"You beating Tom Jones' business?"

"Beating everybody's," Tony said.

Tony's new contract, $100,000 a week, for 6 weeks, is not the biggest in Las Vegas, Tony modestly made clear.

"Streisand and Elvis make something like $160,000 a week. I'm gonna make only 100, though I've been getting 75," declared Tony. "I'm not complainin'."

Jackie Gleason'll be surprised that his son-in-law Jason Miller, 33, husband of his daughter Linda, is the modern Shakespeare, author of one of "the greatest plays ever written."

That's what they said about "That Championship Season," about basketball stars' troubles in later life, which opened off-B-way, part of the Shakespeare Festival Public Theater program.

"Did I hear right? 'A perfect play?' Jason Miller, formerly John Miller, son of a Scranton, Pa., electrician, asked in a light daze at Sardi's. 'I want you to meet my wife. She's lovely.'"

I'd met her when she was small and just Gleason's daughter.

"We eloped to Scranton," Linda said. "Nine years and three kids later came recognition." Both worked as actors, sought no help from anybody. The young playwright who played basketball at Scranton St. Patrick's High about 1947, gave credit for the raves to producer Joseph Papp and his cast. He didn't agree, incidentally but would like to, that it's one of the greatest plays ever written.

Barbra Streisand's got little time for social life

European papers are gossiping about Greta Garbo and an Italian, Massimo Gargia, 30 years younger than her 66

Overflow crowd expected for meeting tonight

Wabasha schools 'report card' may be less than passing

By JOHN LUNDQUIST
WABASHA, Minn. (AP) — The Wabasha area school system gets a report card from the State Department of Education tonight amid indications it may receive less than a passing grade.

Some 25 to 30 staff members of the Education Department late last month spent three days putting the local schools under microscopic scrutiny.

The meeting tonight with the Board of Education is expected to draw an overflow crowd, probably with scores of students on hand.

Swirling around the revealing of the 81-page document are these other developments in public education at the Mississippi River community of some 2,700 persons:

• Randall Patton, superintendent of schools, has resigned effective June 30 over what he calls deep-seated philosophical differences with the majority of the board.

• Voters on May 16 will decide the fate of a $1,992,050 bond proposal for a new high school, and a separate $215,000 proposal for a swimming pool at the school.

• State Commissioner of Education Howard B. Casney has called the Wabasha board "the worst in educational leadership I've seen anywhere." He cited particularly lack of planning in the building proposal—"they have no architect, no site, no alternatives."

Two years ago, a $2.2 million bond issue, including a pool, was rejected by voters 1,189 to 543. Overwhelmingly against that proposal (260-47) were citizens in the Kellogg area, some seven miles away, where one of the district's two elementary schools is located.

It is the patchwork physical plants at Wabasha that are at the heart of the controversy, which has the board split 4-3 against a new building.

The high school is a three-story brick-face building erected in 1918. To the rear and abutting the auditorium stage is a gymnasium added in 1938.

A one-story addition was built to one side of the main building in 1952, and a two-story addition to the other, in 1962.

When the St. Felix Catholic Parish closed its high school four years ago, it put a population and plant pinch on public schools. In the shuffle, high school students remained in the old structure and its additions, along with grades one through six.

Public junior high classes (7th and 8th) were moved two blocks away, into the 18-year-old, two-story building St. Felix had used for a high school. The school board now leases it.

The parochial school—grades one to six—still operates out of the 70-year-old building next door, and on the other side is St. Felix' gymnasium. Built in 1954, the gym serves as the home court for the Wabasha High basketball team.

When the football and track and baseball teams engage a conference foe, they go about three-eighths of a mile from the high school to a city park. And they travel the better part of a mile to a practice field.

Four years ago, the broad survey of Minnesota elementary and secondary education—directed by Otto Domian of the University of Minnesota College of Education—concluded Wabasha's sprawling district needed a new high school.

The report said high school students had fair to excellent general classrooms but special classrooms ranged from excellent to poor.

It noted, and the criticism holds true today, there was no office, laboratory or shop for agricultural education, despite the rural setting. Other phases of vocational education were found wanting.

That is one of the targets of a local organization called "Citizens for Quality Education."

The group is fighting for passage of the bond issue, warning that Wabasha is endangering its state aid and federal vocational aid by not modernizing its plant. It launched the petition drive to get the referendum after the board rejected the proposal.

The Board of Education is aligned this way:

The minority favoring the bond proposals is Chairman John Doffing, a banker; William Hawkins, a farmer, and Wallace Walter, director of county social services.

The controlling ("hold the tax line") majority is made up of William Bruegger, implement dealer; Ruth Williams, a homemaker; Clifford Wilson, sales representative for a feed company, and Ralph Lindgren, grain elevator manager.

The sharp division emerged at a forum before high school youth last Thursday. Doffing and Walter spoke for the school bond proposal and Bruegger and Wilson, against. The audience peppered them with questions.

Asked what he proposed if the bond fails, Bruegger asserted, "I'm really not against doing something, if we need it. Maybe we should build something else besides a high school."

Bruegger also voiced fears Wabasha might overbuild for future population trends. He said Bloomington schools have 200 empty classrooms "and I wouldn't want that to happen here." He said a 20-year bond proposal would cost $2 million in interest.

Wabasha High students have an above-average academic record, the graying 51-year-old Bruegger said, noting he'd taken his early schooling in the same building, and it was drafty then, just as teachers and students now complain.

A student asked Wilson, "Which is more important,

good education or money?"

"Actually, I think there's a lot of taxpayers wondering the same thing, what's the best way to spend money, where are you going to cut?" responded Wilson, product of a one-room schoolhouse many years ago.

Doffing argued Wabasha doesn't have proper school facilities. He said it is a growing area, adding, "Anyone driving into the Sand Prairie neighborhood (on the waterfront) will see people moving in by flocks."

Walter, looking to the state department's report, declared: "I would challenge the rest of the board to objectively accept the recommendations that committee may make."

He drew loud cheers and applause from the audience, about 40 of whom may be eligible to vote in next week's referendum and election of two board members.

Doffing, 33, was elected to the school board two years ago and its chairmanship in July 1971, before the rift.

What does he think of chances for the bond proposal? "Some days I'm optimistic, and some days I'm pessimistic," he said.

Superintendent Patton said his resignation is final, although he hasn't lined up his next position.

"The situation that brought me to that decision still exists," he said of his philosophical split with the board majority.

"I have a great deal of respect for the Board of Education. But I feel the superintendent has to be in basic agreement with the majority or you cannot function well."

The strain of the dispute was telling on the 40-year-old educator, who said he sometimes "feels like 140" and was just back at his desk after treatment for tension in his back.

He calls the teamwork among teachers, administration and students a strength and praised the staff. "From the curriculum standpoint, we have nothing particularly innovative, but it is done well," he said.

Another force in the drive to win approval for a new high school is Dr. David Martin. He maintains the citizens committee represents a major part of the school district's population.

At the invitation of student leaders, he was in the audience at the board's encounter with students and would have spoken except for objections by Wilson and Bruegger. That pair explained to a reporter the session was only supposed to be for board members, and Wilson thought it unfortunate there was a newsman there.

"It's kind of suppressing freedom of speech when the kids invited me up there to talk and some of the board members objected," said Martin, former Bostonian and product of Yale Medical School.

Martin, the only general surgeon in a wide area around Wabasha, came to the community seven years ago. He served four years on the City Council. His wife Sylvia has helped set

Sign taxation causes confusion

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — There is much confusion in Minnesota regarding taxation of business identification signs, according to spokesman for the Minnesota Retail Federation.

Retailers told the state Senate Tax Committee that some tax assessors in the state are placing the signs in a category that taxes advertising signs, which the group says violates the legislative intent of the 1971 tax law.

The federation said other tax assessors have placed the signs under real estate assessment.

It is "illogical" to tax as an advertising device a sign that merely denotes the name of the business on a piece of property, said Stan Krinsky, board chairman of the federation.

up coffee meetings to explain an 11-page pamphlet on why Wabasha should vote for a new school.

Martin argues that Wabasha is financially equipped to absorb a new bond issue. A chart he drew shows the 176-mill local levy for schools in 1971 was reduced to 128 this year and will dip to 71.3 mills next year because as a "have not" district it gets more state aid.

Consequently, he says, 61 added mills for the school and seven more for the pool would bring the rate to 139.

He has authored four letters to the Wabasha County Herald criticizing the board majority.

Of Patton's resignation he said:

"It is appalling and outrageous that a man of this caliber be humiliated and intimidated by high-handed individuals dedicated to complacency about shabbiness and mediocrity."

Elsewhere, he wrote, "Our area cannot attract industry or the people we need to continue as a community if we have a substandard educational system."

Mrs. Martin said a general practitioner's wife once vetoed a move to Wabasha by her family after she looked into the educational facilities.

Signs of the times

Although Winona, gratefully, is relatively free of people who deface public areas with their scrawlings, the defacement in larger cities has reached such major proportions that special products have been manufactured to remove the graffiti. A New Jersey firm expects to sell 5,000 to 8,000 gallons of Dirty Word Remover in the first half of this year in New York City alone. It's a fluorocarbon water-soluble remover. Other new products are plastic barrier coatings to protect porous materials such as granite, limestone and brick. If these products are on the material before the defacement it makes removal easier. — A.B.

You make me sick

Would a mortgage of more than $10,000 on your home upset you a bit (or does it)? How about trouble with your boss? Or getting married or ending it? Would you find it difficult to adjust to a new home or a pregnancy or if Sue or John left home? Indeed could they make you sick?

For many years researchers have been studying the relationship between disease and disease and Thomas H. Holmes and Minoru Masuda have concluded that, although germs may cause a disease, something else may cause you to succumb to the germ at a particular time. And that something probably is your ability to cope with life's slings and arrows.

HERE'S THE way they put it in Psychology Today:

"Human beings do indeed get sick when they have to cope with many of the events of normal life. When they struggle with overwhelming life crises, they tend to get more serious diseases. The explanation, we suspect, is that the activity of coping can lower resistance to disease, particularly when one's coping techniques are faulty, when they lack relevance to the type of problems to be solved. . . . When life is too hectic, and when coping attempts fail, illness is the unhappy result."

They report on an interesting study, the results of which tend to support their conclusion. The research pair studied patients who came to them with colds and nasal infections. The patients were asked to return when they had recovered. At that time they were examined — blood flow, breathing, swelling, nasal secretion, etc. Then the doctors started talking about disagreeable events that had occurred to the patients before they became ill. After this conversation about his mother-in-law, for example, or his new job, the measurements were repeated and the cold symptoms had reappeared.

Other research has found correlation between disease and tuberculosis, athletic injuries, pregnancy, cancer, heart attack, among others, including of course, ulcers.

WHAT SITUATIONS can cause people to become sick? Well, it depends on the person but here are the top 10 life events (out of 43) on the researchers' Social-Readjustment Rating Scale in order of their potential disease: the higher the number, the greater the event's anticipated readjustment requirement:

Death of spouse	100
Divorce	73
Marital separation	65
Jail term	63
Death of close family member	63
Personal injury or illness	53
Marriage	50
Fired at work	47
Marital reconciliation	45
Retirement	45

A sampling of others: in-law trouble, 29; change in church activities, 19; vacation, 13, and Christmas, 12.

The researchers have also tested this against other cultures, including the Japanese, and found a remarkable consensus.

Now do you believe in mental health?—A.B.

Where are you?

That's not an easy question to answer, because there are a number of right answers.

Now that the Winona School Board, the Minnesota Legislature (for Congress) and the Winona County Board of Commissioners have all reapportioned, a voter may find himself in another ward or district. When the City Council redistricts, which it must, and when the legislature redistricts, which it must, there may still be more strange divisions of the population.

Splitting the geography up to get wards and districts perfectly equalized by the numbers is a noble and legal exercise, but it also results in some strange formations. Sometimes we wonder if people wouldn't be willing to compromise a little on that one-man, one-vote principle to avoid being shuttled from one ward and district to another.—A.B.

Some of us really have the courage of our convictions. A friend reports seeing one of those "America — Love It or Leave It" signs on the rear of a car. Ironically, the car was a compact German import. — Louisville Courier-Journal.

What man in charge would stop bombers?

William S. White

WASHINGTON — The nightmare vision of which none dare speak aloud — the possibility of a collapse in South Vietnam so immense as to imperil the withdrawal of the remaining American ground forces — can no longer be wholly shut out of consciousness.

Ever since the massive communist invasion was opened, this ghastly danger has been latent, obvious to all who were willing to face its implications, and, of course, unuttered. And ever since the communists stormed in from the north this ghastly danger has underlain President Nixon's resolute refusal to halt the defensive American bombing actions so endlessly denounced by American doves as an "escalation" of the conflict.

WITH AN extraordinary innocence of certain iron realities of warfare that have nothing to do with who's a Republican and who's a Democrat, who's a conservative and who's a liberal, they have concentrated on two. The first is that our bombing must be ended forthwith. The second is that all our infantrymen be "taken out, lock stock and barrel." (Just as facile as that.)

These people have overlooked the not-inconsiderable fact that orderly retreat, not to mention safe retreat, is no easy thing to accomplish, given one of those rare and direful military situations in which forward and rear areas become no longer distinguishable the one from the other and "the fog of war" descends in blinding chaos.

All this is not to suggest that such a situation is actually at hand in Vietnam. It is only to say that it is no longer prudent automatically to assume that so tragic an eventuality could in no circumstances ever lie ahead. When a man of the restraint, the knowledge and the sense of responsibility of John Stennis, the chairman of the Armed Services Committee, rises in the Senate to say that a time of "travail, bereavement and evaluation" may be in the offing for this nation, he is not simply giving a justification for an American air intervention that needs no apology in the first place.

FOR THE plain and now scarcely arguable truth is that without the heroic — yes, heroic — assistance of the American air arm it is profoundly likely that far more of South Vietnam than is presently invested or terrorized by the communists would now be beneath the enemy's heel.

Moreover, in such a set of circumstances informed men in Washington would today be pondering not the dread hypothesis of some Dunkirk for American soldiers but rather the probability of such a catastrophe.

So, there is irony in the tireless attempts of the doves to establish as gospel engraved upon stone tablets the earnest stereotype that the President has been bombing "against the will of the American people."

This cliché was based upon the oversimplified conclusion that since the war itself was and is frustrating to the people they would disapprove Mr. Nixon's decision not to stand aside and let an ally go down in a hurry. That these two things are not the same thing, this columnist has previously attempted to suggest. Now, a fresh pool shows seven out of 10 Americans support what the President has done.

TO BE SURE, this crisis is far too somber to be used simply to criticize the critics. It does seem permissible, however, to point out how dreadfully wrong their judgment has been. What price now all the crises of "escalation" and all the promises of dove politicians to dispose of the war simply by declaring it "immoral" or "illegal" or nonexistent? What responsible — and informed — public man would now really ground the bombers if the buck had to stop at this desk?

Beware of new populism

By JEFFREY ST. JOHN
Copley News Service

NEW YORK — "For a generation we have watched liberals gain more power and display less liberalism," observed authors Jack Newfield and Jeff Greenfield in "A Populist Manifesto." "But now it's time to return again to the first question of politics: who holds power and by what right?"

The authors' question and work anticipated Alabama Gov. George Wallace's populist political rhetoric which proved so successful in the Wisconsin primary and will undoubtedly influence the 1972 presidential campaign.

THE NEW Populism is fast becoming the hottest political property around; every Democratic presidential candidate is eager to get aboard the bandwagon that promises to lift the burden of taxes carried by working Americans. However, before this latest bogus bill of goods gains much more ground, it's important to understand what is implied by populism.

Prof. James Q. Wilson, chairman of the department of government at Harvard University, contends the new populism has "a familiar ring; the supporting facts and argument even more so. They are to a substantial degree the unfinished agenda of the left wing of the New Deal coalition, circa 1938. . . ."

The New Deal was dedicated to the dubious proposition that America's economic problems were the product of "economic royalists." Much the same argument was advanced by farmer-rural groups in 1892 which founded the short-lived but highly influential Populist party that was profoundly influenced by the flood of immigrant intellectuals who fled Europe in the mid-1800s, bringing with them the ideas of Marx and his hatred for a free economic system.

THE MARXISTS preached against the doctrine of business "greed" and "exploitation" which was incorporated into the post-Civil War Greenback party. The Greenback party influenced the Populist movement, which in turn spawned the so-called "progressive era," setting the tone for the New Deal.

What the Marxists, Greenbacks, Populists, Progressives and the New Deal all shared in common was a belief that working Americans were "exploited" by business and that such a state of affairs could be corrected by the intervention of gov-

Conscience debt

An editorial in Christian Science Monitor

The U.S. Treasury has just received $20 in payment of a World War II conscience debt.

The ex-GI from Kansas, who sent the check via his local congressman, said he hoped it would make up for two delinquencies of his: deliberately destroying a combat boot and eating a can of pineapple found on the beach at Bougainville in the Pacific.

We could moralize about this, but it would sound pretty corny. Let's confine ourselves to noting that the Treasury would make a mighty big cash haul if all who had ever dealt with government property were as conscientious as the unidentified Kansan.

School cheating now big business

Cheating in school has been going on ever since old pharaoh's student scribes were vying to see which one could put the most hieroglyphics on a given sheet of papyrus.

In my day, it used to be done through "ponies" cunningly constructed of adding-machine tapes and rubber bands. These were used to provide the classroom delinquent with a comfy course outline he could rotate clandestinely during the final exam which he had been too busy playing poker and/or chasing blondes to study for.

TODAY WE can say truthfully to cheating: "You've come a long way, baby." I refer you to an outfit calling itself Term Paper Research Unlimited, and when it says "unlimited" you'd better believe it. Recently it opened a branch office in Chicago, and suddenly cheating became big business in the Windy City's halls of academe.

For a mere $2.25 per page, TPRU provides you with a Xerox copy of a term paper it has previously prepared and placed in its files. It matters not what exotic topic may have been assigned by an unfeeling instructor; you can order a paper on anything from "Assyrian Temple Carvings" to "The Role of Dandruff in the Career of Aaron Burr," and relax with a six-pack, secure in the knowledge the TPRU's professional cheaters will get you an "A" with no effort on your part.

My heart is wrung like an old dishrag at the memory of how much slavery I could have avoided down the years if only this fine, ethical industry had been in existence while I was in school. How I slaved over one deathless effusion titled "Mythological and Biblical Interpolations in Miltonic Blank Verse," for which I had to peruse every line of old John's interminable flights of fine poetic fancy! Then there was that dreadful one I did in a school law course on "The Frequency of Ultra Vires Contracts in Administrative-Faculty Relationships." TPRU would probably have charged me $50 a page for that one.

THIS SWINDLE syndicate is only a couple of years old. Born rather than banned in Boston, it has prospered so that its offices are now found in 40 cities across the land. It sells footnoted and bibliographed masters' theses for $10 a page, and Ph.D. dissertations for $25. Recently it hit the jackpot when a single desperate doctoral candidate, up against an ominously looming deadline, paid the company $10,000 to compose him a masterpiece.

Upon reflection, I guess TPRU wouldn't have done me very much good at that when I was burning the old midnight oil at UCLA during the Hungry Thirties. I never had that kind of money to spend on term papers or anything else. In fact, if Shakespeare himself had shown up during a seance back in those stark times and had offered to ghostwrite a complete set of new sonnets for my English lit. class, the most I could have scraped up to give him would have been $5.45 and an Alf Landon campaign button.

SERIOUSLY though, this sort of approach to schooling may best be described as hilariously sinister, a cross between a Charlie Chaplin-esque assembly line and dollar-studded knife thrust carefully into the back of scholarly research. It ignores the ultimate reality, trite but true, that you get out of school the exact equivalent in knowledge of what you put into it in effort, and no more. A national educational climate in which well-heeled slobos can buy "A" term papers and climb to the elusive degree on the shoulders of ink-stained mercenaries will mean the certain end of education as a national factor for good during the years ahead.

May I suggest to the American private business sector that it zero in on this new and unlovely wart on its collective corporate countenance? Maybe the Better Business Bureau boys can lower the boom on the TPRU hirelings. If not, then how about the several state legislatures outlawing this paltry prostitution of American private enterprise?

Much as I dislike political interference with schooling, I prefer it to turning the whole educational shebang in this country over to the chiselers.

Attorneys-general and party funds

From an editorial in Memphis Commercial Appeal

It used to be that the campaign managers wound up as postmasters general, an office which became more honorary than real. That custom ended when President John F. Kennedy appointed his brother-campaign manager, Robert, to head the Justice Department. The criticism which resulted from that appointment should have been warning to President Nixon and kept him from naming his old law partner, Mitchell.

This does not mean that either Robert Kennedy or John Mitchell actually was engaged in anything underhanded in his operation of the Justice Department. It simply means that when campaign fund raisers are placed in such positions there is suspicion that justice can be colored by the political connections. It is a suspicion that should be avoided.

To the editor

Censorship of X-rated motion pictures wrong

I read the letters from several of your readers praising your refusal to advertise X-rated movies.

I must take issue with them and with your newspaper. Underlying the over-emotional and rather nonsensical concern about the public's "welfare" there is a startling assumption: that the newspaper can decide what its readers should and should not see. It is, in effect, suppression of the news in a misguided attempt to influence public morality, a kind of silent censorship which attempts to deny the individual even the choice of what he will view by falsely narrowing the number of possibilities. It is also a mute threat to the theater owner, telling him that there are "certain movies" which he may not show if he wishes to have the "privilege" of advertising them. The ultimate effect is again to narrow the public's range of choices, if the owner succumbs to the intimidation.

GRANTED THE highly improbable assumption that the movies really do seriously influence public morality (cf. the report of the President's Commission on Pornography) and that sexual candor in a movie will somehow increase licentiousness among our (no doubt) innocent youths and adults, could your paper not apply the same policy of suppression of advertisement for movies which are rife with scenes of violence? (But then, most of them are rated PG, so that would start cutting into advertising revenue.) Or how about movies which take a political stance which the editor finds repugnant? Don't they constitute a danger to our impressionable children (and adults) as well?

But these inconsistencies of policy are, I suppose, to be expected. After all, when a paper which is ever zealous in keeping the public informed about who has been charged with statutory rape, who was drunk and disorderly when and where, who was accused of shoplifting, a paper whose evident concern for printing all the news that's fit to print (oops, wrong paper) extends even to supplying names and addresses of these alleged offenders to a public which they must assume eager to be so informed — when that paper takes the inconsistent stance of refusing to tell the public about a fictional rendering of what goes on (at least, presumably, in other communities) among people, then other inconsistencies are not surprising.

PLEASE, isn't there enough censorship already? Aren't there enough self-appointed moral guardians deciding what we and our children may and should see? Isn't the rating system sufficient to warn off children and adults who object to sexual frankness? The majority of X-rated films are so palpably exploitative and shoddy that no reasonably intelligent adult would waste his money on them; but why punish the occasional good one (e.g., "Midnight Cowboy" on its first release or, more recently, "A Clockwork Orange") which is brave enough to limit its probable appeal in the interest of candor and a fuller vision of life. If people choose not to attend, well and good; but they must be allowed to choose.

Agriculture Dept. book shows both sides of problems

By DON KENDALL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department, often derided by critics for allegedly turning a deaf ear toward environmental problems, published today a 50-page booklet that shows the warts as well as the handsome side of man and nature.

The report is a series of articles prepared by the Agricultural Research Service. Authors cite some of the major challenges facing scientists and regulatory agencies involved with agriculture as well as some of the things being done to improve the environment.

"Certainly not all of these tools will work," the ARS says in a foreword. "There is no panacea, no quick solution. It will require a national effort by millions of people working together."

Citing the limitations on natural resources, the report said: "We cannot manufacture these basic requirements of life. Unfortunately, we—including agriculture—are still exploiting them."

For beginning ecologists, the booklet, entitled "Managing Our Environment," provides a wealth of facts, including:

- The Mississippi River annually carries nearly 500 million tons of sediment to the Gulf of Mexico, an amount of silt equal to the topsoil from nearly half a million acres of farm land.

- Nitrogen fertilizers "at times" cause high nitrate accumulations in food plants such as spinach and beets, but are "not a serious contributor" to water pollution where good farming practices are followed.
- The United States produces livestock manure each year equal to the waste from a human population of 1.9 billion persons.

Pesticides, always a touchy subject for the department, come in for some hard scrutiny. "The public has a right to be concerned over possible poisoning of the environment," the ARS says. "For example, DDT can cause thinning of eggshells in ducks and falcons ..."

"Pesticides from the air, water and soil may be absorbed and concentrated in the bodies of organisms ... (and) frequently increased as one species feeds on another and passes the pesticide from one link to another one higher in the food chain."

Control of insects by "integrated" techniques including parasites, induced diseases, resistant plant varieties, traps baited with sex lures, genetic and hormone manipulation and other methods may be the solution.

"Expensive? Yes. But compared to the costs of pesticides, applied year after year, integrated control is a bargain, indeed," the report said.

AS THE vote is winnowed down from a potential 100 percent of those 18 and over to a more likely 65 percent, the big loser in the process of attrition is Sen. Kennedy. Here are the reasons why:

- Young persons 18-29 years of age now make up 28 percent of the population eligible to vote, but likely will be no more than 24 percent of the actual electorate in November, based on present registration totals and past turnout. Kennedy wins this segment 48-33 percent with Wallace at 12 percent. Slippage among the young who do not turn out to vote on Election Day could cost Kennedy 1.5 points of his support.

- Blacks make up 11 percent of the population, but at best will be 9 percent of the actual electorate, based on past turnout and voting restrictions still in effect. Kennedy holds a wide, 79-14 percent lead among blacks. The failure of blacks to vote their full numbers in November could cost Kennedy another 2.5 points.

- Low-income voters are 25 percent of the potential but are likely to be no more than 21 percent of the actual voters come Election Day. Kennedy leads with the group with income under $5,000, by 46-40 percent. He loses almost another point here when his vote percentage is adjusted for decreased turnout.

IN CONTRAST, running against Sen. Kennedy, President Nixon picks up real ground because of the likelihood that certain key groups ready to back him will turn out at the polls at a high rate.

- Persons earning $15,000 and over, although only 20 percent of the whole population, are expected to make up 23 percent of the actual voters next November. Mr. Nixon wins this group against Sen. Kennedy by a wide 57-29 percent margin. Among the most affluent, the President thus adds more than 1.5 points to his lead over Kennedy because of high turnout.

- Suburban voters are 26 percent of the total population 18 years of age and older, but will comprise an estimated 28 percent of the electorate next fall. President Nixon holds a 51-33 percent edge among suburbanites over the Massachusetts

Senator. He gains another point here.

The story on Sen. Kennedy is that of all the Democratic field he certainly could generate the most enthusiasm and low-income whites. Whereas Humphrey loses the vote of the under-30 segment by 40-34 percent and McGovern by a closer 39-37 percent, Kennedy sweeps the young.

BUT Kennedy also has some glaring weaknesses. He runs relatively poorly among the college educated, losing to Nixon 56-29 percent. He also flounders among voters 50 and over, losing by 50-28 percent, more than offsetting his gains among the young. He is also relatively weak among Jewish voters, giving away 35 percent of this group to the opposition, as against 21 percent who would vote Republican if Humphrey were the candidate.

These might be troubles enough for the last remaining Kennedy brother in a bid for the White House in 1972. But his single biggest handicap as a candidate will be that it is precisely among those groups where his appeal is greatest—blacks, low-income whites, and the young — where the turnout is likely to be lowest. And among the groups where his appeal is weakest—the suburbs, the affluent, the college educated — the turnout on election day is likely to be high.

THE LOCKHORNS

"NOW WHAT DID I DO WITH MY NEW POTHOLDER?"

But he never promised you a rose garden

DEAR ABBY: My husband has one brother and one sister. The brother married a very rich girl and he has no money worries. The sister married a professional man who does very well, and they are also on easy street. They both have lovely large homes, help in the house, etc. My husband is barely making it.

Twelve years ago my father-in-law lost his wife and didn't want to live alone. The others couldn't take Grandpa because they traveled too much, etc., so he came to live with us.

We gave up our bedroom and moved into a dinky guest room so Grandpa could have the best. For 12 years this selfish, complaining, demanding old man lived with us. Two years ago he suffered a stroke and I had to care for him 24 hours a day, bathing, feeding, everything! He could have afforded to go to a nursing home because he had money socked away and plenty, but he wouldn't hear of it.

I put up with his cursing, complaining and demanding, and so did my children. All the while, he never gave us one penny for his keep! Well, Grandpa died two weeks ago, and his will read:

"All my children shall share and share alike."

Would you care to comment? A COUPLE OF CHUMPS

DEAR CHUMPS: It seems inequitable to put it delicately, but I'm reminded of an old Yiddish saying, "If you come for the inheritance you might have to pay for the funeral."

DEAR ABBY: This is an open letter to my mother: Dear Mom: If you should ever suspect me of taking drugs, please invade my privacy because I know that you always want the best for me.

I always tell you not to worry about me but I suppose that it is silly of me to say this, because if you should cease to worry about my welfare you will cease to love me. I pray that I will never do anything to hurt you or Dad in any way. I also pray that I will never do anything to hurt myself but if I do, and you should find out, I know that you will do everything in your power to try to stop me, and I will love you for it. YOUR 16-YEAR-OLD DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: I appreciated your letter, and while I know that many will agree with you, some will not. Please read on for another 16-year-old's point of view:

DEAR ABBY: I am absolutely furious with you! What do you mean saying that you thought parents had the "right" to search their children's drawers and closets and go to all lengths necessary to find out whether their children were involved with drugs?

I am 16, and it is my "right" as a citizen to do what I want with my body. And if I want to take drugs my parents have no business spying on me to find out whether I am or not.

I have always thought you were reasonably fair minded, but not any more. And it won't do you any good to retract your statement because I am through reading your column. FORMER READER

DEAR ABBY: Re the letter in your column relating to the difficulties of getting an arrest stricken from the record after an acquittal:

In Illinois, the procedure is simple: One files a petition with the Chief Judge of the Criminal Court, and states simply that he was arrested and acquitted and desires to have his arrest record expunged.

Not only will his arrest be expunged, but if his fingerprints and photographs were taken, those will be returned by the Chief of Police and absolutely no record is kept of the arrest. J. L. E., CHICAGO ATTORNEY

DEAR MR. E.: Congratulations to the progressive State of Illinois!

Your horoscope — Jeane Dixon

For TUESDAY, May 9

Your birthday today: Your mission in the world is clarified and perhaps simpler to achieve. There is more to do than you have thought, with the extra strength and resources to work with. Travel features the latter part of the coming year. Today's natives are fond of evading hidden obstacles; the women have talent for dancing.

Aries (March 21-April 19): The natural limitation you meet today is there and real, but not as great as it appears. Self-expression is easier, concise in later hours.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Discussions started now ramble on, may drift into disputes if you let them. Work will be a center of personal conflicts.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): You make progress in personal creative ventures. Put an old score right with a few words and some definite action.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): An old system needs some new methods. Take the needs of others into account, make common cause for better results. Home life thrives.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): There's much stir and sound in today's bickerings but little lasting damage. You can smooth things out by afternoon. Romance brightens where least expected.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): If others are to mesh their plans with yours, they must know in detail what you are doing. Likewise, you should pay attention to them.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Don't let anything spoil this day of many moods. Having your own way about everything may cost you future cooperation.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Actions run into unexpected obstacles, interference. Avoid putting any further investments to the test until you have a clear understanding.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): No one seems to agree with anything today. Your own interests require serene patience.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Tend home and family welfare first. You may have the chance to eliminate a longstanding doubt by alert listening and fast reaction.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Ask your friends and associates for the cooperation you need, avoiding disagreements over money. Some discrepancy in your own plans comes to the surface.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Conservative handling of money provides extra benefits, broader choices later. Contacts which stir emotional reactions develop.

Tiny party sandwiches are fun to make and add a festive note to a tea table. Serve them too as a late evening snack—they go equally well with hot or cold drinks.

A few tips will make the job easier. Have several kinds of bread, some light, some dark. Contrast fillings with the bread—a light filling on a dark bread and vice versa. Use thin sliced bread and spread the fillings thickly. Fillings should be well-seasoned and at room temperature to spread easily. Use very fresh bread for rolled sandwiches, day-old bread for filled sandwiches.

Trim the bread of all crusts (save them for bread pudding or dressing). For a perfectly smooth edge, lay the bread slices in a single layer on a baking sheet and put in the freezer for 10 minutes. Trim with a sharp knife. Spread the inside of each slice with a thin layer of soft butter. It will add to the flavor and keep the filling from making the bread soggy. Put on a thick layer of filling and top with another buttered bread slice.

Put sandwiches in a shallow baking pan, cover with waxed paper and lay a damp paper towel over the top. Slip the whole pan into a plastic sack and refrigerate for several hours or overnight. Slice or cut while cold. Cut in triangles, strips or tiny squares (circles waste too much of everything).

To serve arrange different shapes, breads and fillings on several small trays. It's easier to bring in another tray than to refill a large one at the table.

Here is one of your favorite fillings. Save this column, we'll have more fillings next week. This one freezes well, and sandwiches can be made a week or more before a party. They thaw quickly, too, so that you can serve them to unexpected guests.

PECAN BUTTER

1 stick butter
1 cup pecans
1 teaspoon seasoned salt

Have butter at room temperature. Finely chop or grate nuts. Stir in with seasoned salt and mix well. Spread on very fresh trimmed white bread. Roll and chill, seam side down, according to directions given above. Slice 1/2 to 3/4" thick while cold to make pinwheel sandwiches. Makes 24 to 28.

Chill, then freeze. Wrap well or put in boxes and seal with tape. Thaw overnight in refrigerator or 1 hour at room temperature. Slice while cold. Will keep in freezer up to 4 weeks.

CARPET YARNS . . .

Why pay for less than thorough carpet cleaning?

What is the answer? Lyle's steam process will clean and extract the dirt, soil and old shampoo while removing 92% of the water applied during cleaning. Our process is comparable to ripping out the carpet, sending it to the laundry and having it thoroughly washed, rinsed and spin dried. Lyle's feels this is the finest method of cleaning for all forms of carpeting — we have been steam cleaning upholstery and carpeting for over three years now with great success!

Is it true that carpet soils faster after once being cleaned?

Normally, with do-it-yourself shampooing, all forms of carpet look brighter for a short while. Using a wet pickup after shampooing, a very negligible amount of water and dirt will be extracted. Shags are less easy to clean yourself, and moisture extraction is considerably less than desirable with shampooing. A prime example would be to shampoo one's hair, let it dry without rinsing, and vacuum the dirt and shampoo out later. I am sure a test isn't required to know how ridiculous that would be. That is exactly the way carpets are left after shampooing — stiff and starchy with a film coating the fibers, attracting dirt and retaining it more than would the new carpet without film.

Call Lyle's for 10% Discount on steam cleaning during May! Let Lyle's help you spring houseclean and save 10%!

Chief of Wisconsin prisons —

Study group avoided the problem

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A study group's recommendation for closing penitentiaries does not answer the question of how taxpayers are to pay for penal security, the chief of Wisconsin prisons says.

Many felons "have to be in secure facilities, and these don't come cheaply," Sangor Powers said.

"If the public policy of the state, as reflected by the legislature, is to place them in community-based facilities," he said, the taxpayers "would have to be prepared to pay for it."

Powers was replying to a report by a subcommittee of the governor's Task Force on Offender Rehabilitation. A draft of the report was made public Saturday.

The panel called for top priority in "closing of all major correctional institutions, both adult and juvenile," and replacing the prisons "with a community-based treatment system by June 30, 1975."

The subcommittee said it acknowledges a need for maximum security for some convicts, but that education, psychological support services, job opportunities and other agency rehabilitation would be better for the bulk of criminals.

Powers cautioned against too much liberty for certain types of convicts.

Even with about 85 per cent of persons taken to criminal courts in Wisconsin being given probation, Powers said, the state still has "something like 2,600 adults in prison."

"If my memory serves me right, something over 1,500 are there for serious crimes, including murder, aggravated assault, robbery, burglary and manslaughter," he said.

"Whether these 1,500 would be the kind that people of this state would want in community facilities is a question the legislature would have to answer," Powers said.

He said the penitentiary system needs improving, and that many inmates would respond better to rehabilitation in smaller, more personal institutions. But the subcommittee recommendation, he suggested, might be "an oversimplification of an extremely complex problem, made without regard to such concerns as public safety and welfare."

The state's penal system is already working along the community-based line of treatment to a limited degree, he said, citing the 85 per cent given probation.

There isn't always a "reasonable, safe alternative" in the cases of the other 15 per cent, he said.

Admittedly, there isn't a lot to be said for the state's 19th century penitentiaries at Wau-pun and Green Bay, he said, describing them as drab and remote from the inmates' home towns. "We wouldn't build institutions like that today," Powers said. "We would love to trade them for bright new institutions."

Raymond Malmquist, chairman of the task force, said he suspects his panel may suggest closing the Green Bay penitentiary and the Taycheedah Home for Women in two years.

None of his panel's members, Malmquist said, "is of the mind that suddenly these people who cannot fit into society safely should be freed."

"Naturally, there is going to have to be a maximum confinement center," he said.

Value of family unit eroded by new age law

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A reduction of Wisconsin's age of majority to 18 tends to erode the value of the family unit for youngsters in their late teens, a Circuit Court judge complained Sunday.

Parents shed their responsibilities earlier than they should when laws grant statutory adulthood to their children, Judge Maurice M. Spracker told a civic group.

He recommended the legislature adopt remedial measures to modify the age-of-majority law, which allows persons who are 18 and older to marry without parental consent, sign contracts, get sued and drink hard liquor.

Taxpayers should tell legislators "it is not in the best interest of the 18, 19 and 20-year-olds to permit indifferent parents to walk away from their responsibility of supporting, caring for and educating their children."

Spracker said the state should preserve the intent of the Family Code under which parents and guardians assure support of youngsters until they are 21.

The lowered age, he said, "shifts this parental obligation in many instances to welfare."

The new law conflicts with the meaning of the Family Code and "discourages family solidarity and unity," he said.

"Today, families are in trouble; trouble so deep and pervasive as to threaten the future of our society," the judge said.

The lowered age "will add more poor marriages; marriages not solidly based," he argued.

"These 18-year-olds have no trade, no education nor any money. How can a marriage without a sound economic base succeed, especially in these high-cost-of-living times?" Spracker said.

Children, he said, "should not be deprived of basic family ties and should not be forced on welfare at 18."

Does TV promote reckless driving?

By WILLIAM HELTON
HONOLULU (AP) — Violence on television may be a cause of reckless and irresponsible driving, a university of Hawaii mass media researcher says.

He says that if you watch such programs as "Hawaii

Five-O," "Mannix," "The FBI" or "Cannon," you're more likely to be a careless driver than if you prefer Lawrence Welk, "The Courtship of Eddie's Father" or other nonviolent fare.

That's the conclusion of Dr. K.S. Sitaram, who says he spent two years comparing the television viewing habits of good and bad drivers.

Sitaram interviewed 293 bad drivers who had been ordered by Honolulu District Court to take a safe driving course as a result of traffic violations. He compared their video tastes with those of 54 good drivers.

"Most of the bad drivers listed such programs as 'Hawaii Five-O,' 'Mannix,' 'Cannon,' and 'The FBI' as their favorite programs," Sitaram said in an interview. "People with safe driving habits tended not to watch such programs."

Sitaram also found that the bad drivers could remember such character names as "Hawaii Five-O's" Steve McGarrett and Mannix but could not recall the names of the actors playing the parts.

"This confirms my hypothesis that they are living in a world of fantasy," he said. "They act out the fantasies when they are driving. They probably think they are Mannix or McGarrett and are trying to imitate them."

There is a message in all this, Sitaram said. "People learn aggression from the mass media, particularly radio and television," he said.

Injured SMC student dies at Rochester

Philip Freidel, 19, Waterloo, Iowa, a student at St. Mary's College, died at 3:49 a.m. Saturday at St. Mary's Hospital, Rochester, Minn., following an incident at the college April 28.

According to Assistant Chief John Scherer, the police received a call from an unidentified male at 11:28 April 28 stating there was a student hurt who had apparently fallen in St. Mary's Hall. Upon arriving at the scene, the police found Freidel on the first floor of the building, unconscious and bleeding from a cut on his head. He was found at the bottom of a winding four-story open staircase.

Freidel was taken to Community Memorial Hospital by Praxel Ambulance but transferred to St. Mary's early in the morning April 29. He never regained consciousness.

Scherer said the police talked with the father of the boy and learned that Freidel was with some friends in a room on the fourth floor when he decided to go to the first floor where the soft-drink machines are located. Scherer said it is not known which floor he fell from but the police are convinced no foul play was involved.

Funeral arrangements are being made in Waterloo, Iowa.

Foreign relations group probes Vietnam history

By HARRISON HUMPHRIES
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee reaches back through two decades of history in hearings this week exploring the origin of U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

Chairman J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., announced the hearings today, after the committee made public a staff report assessing the current prospects for peace as bleak.

Fulbright said the hearings Tuesday through Thursday are designed "to illuminate the lessons of the past and benefit present and future policy."

Testimony will be based on the once-secret Pentagon Papers which traced U.S. involvement in Vietnam through the Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson administrations.

The staff report concluded that the success of President Nixon's Vietnamization policy has no bearing on the prospects for peace in the embattled nation.

"It seems clear that the North Vietnamese will be able to continue to use the territory of Laos and Cambodia to pursue the war in South Vietnam no matter how successful Vietnamization proves to be, and to keep South Vietnam in a state of permanent siege," said the document.

The analysis was based on the assessments of James G. Lowenstein and Richard M. Moose, committee staff members who visited Laos, Cambodia and Thailand last January.

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., chairman of the subcommittee on U.S. security agreements, released parts of it Sunday after executive-branch security officers censored it.

The foreign relations panel's hearings begin with testimony by Dr. Leslie Gelb, chairman of the task force which conducted the Defense Department study that became known as the Pentagon Papers after widespread publication last June.

Other witnesses will include James C. Thomson Jr., a former White House aide and now a Harvard history professor; Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr., an assistant to former Presidents Kennedy and Johnson; and Noam Chomsky, a professor at Massachusetts Institute of Technology and a member of the Committee of Concerned Asian Scholars.

In another development, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy insisted that U.S. aid programs for refugees in Laos still are being used to support military operations

Claim Canada to remain in wheat business

By DON KENDALL
WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Department officials, taking a look at Canadian farm prospects, say the northern neighbor will remain in the big-time wheat business at least through 1975.

The analysis was provided Wednesday in a report by the Economic Research Service. Canada is one of the world's largest exporters of farm products and is second only to the United States as an international wheat salesman.

"Although Canada's wheat production through 1975 will be up from 1970-71 levels, it is not expected to reach levels attained during the mid-1960s," the report said.

Other observations included: "Coarse grains (including corn and barley) production will continue to increase rapidly."

"Beef production will increase but less rapidly than sharply increasing domestic demand."

On the outlook for Canadian beef expansion—which also affects U.S. markets and import levels—the report said Canada will bridge the production-consumer gap mainly by boosting imports. There is no sign Canada plans to reduce beef exports to the United States, the report said.

Kennedy visit to Wisconsin adds fuel to presidential speculation

By JOHN HARTZELL
MILWAUKEE (AP) — Sen. Edward Kennedy's visit to Wisconsin over the weekend added more fuel to speculation he will become the Democratic presidential candidate in some future year.

This seemed to be the case even though the Massachusetts senator—who had made a dozen major appearances before party, labor and student groups in the last few weeks—continued to disclaim he is a candidate in this year's race.

"Perhaps because I'm an activist and very much involved in issues and very much concerned about what's happening in the country and speaking out on the issues, I suppose they associate this with political activity," Kennedy said Saturday at an airport news conference upon his arrival.

Or perhaps Kennedy, who was born in 1932, feels he could still run for president in any election through at least 1992 and still not be considered too old for the job.

Wisconsin Gov. Patrick Lucey, who was one of the first to support the senator's older brother, John, in his successful campaign for the presidency in 1960, indicated this might be the case Saturday night at the party's $100-a-plate Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner.

Lucey noted that he had campaigned recently in Massachusetts for Sen. George McGovern, and had introduced the South Dakotan as "the next president of the United States." McGovern first sought the presidency after another Kennedy brother, Robert, was assassinated while seeking the party's nomination in 1968, and has been endorsed by one of Robert Kennedy's daughters.

The governor said Edward Kennedy would have to settle on being introduced as "a future president of the United States."

Those attending the fund-raising dinner filed past Kennedy at the head table Saturday for nearly an hour—shaking hands, getting autographs and having their pictures taken with him.

There were many among the 3,000 present still waiting to meet him face to face when the program began a half hour behind schedule. But, while he received a half-minute standing ovation before he delivered a short speech, the crowd was not ecstatic as they had been for his brother 12 years ago when he was in the heat of a presidential race.

The senator indicated he felt McGovern and Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, the party's nominee in 1968, had emerged after early primaries as the prime contenders for the nomination.

He said he could support either of them, but had no intention of endorsing anyone until the convention.

Kennedy said his current efforts were aimed at helping Democrats at the local level "in establishing the framework for the national political campaign." He told newsmen he would continue speaking out on domestic and foreign policy issues and hoped to "have some input" in determining how the party's nominee will address the nation's problems.

The dinner netted the Democrats a sizable sum for upcoming elections. Party officials estimated 1,500 of the $100-a-plate tickets were sold as well as about an equal number of $2 seats in the Auditorium balcony.

Nixon's failure to get the United States out of the Vietnam war in the 3½ years he has been in office, despite his campaign promise to do so, was blasted by the senator.

Kennedy said President Eisenhower, under whom Nixon served as vice president for eight years, had promised to go to Korea if he were elected in 1952 and did go and the war was ended.

"Why doesn't this administration follow the example of the Eisenhower administration?" he asked.

The senator pointed out that the president recently went to Red China, "where he had campaign" with the communist leaders and "brought back two China panda bears." And he noted the president planned to visit the Soviet Union soon and "have some more champagne" with the communist leaders there.

The Nixon administration was described by Kennedy as showing that the Republican Party is the party of the corporations, rather than the people.

"This administration is more interested in the economy of ITT than the economy of the nation," he said. "This administration is interested in the welfare of Lockheed and in the welfare of Penn Central. It is not interested in finding welfare reform for the American people."

"This is an administration which is more interested in the health of the AMA and the insurance industry than the health of the American people."

While the Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner, like most party fund-raising affairs, was one of back-slapping praise by Democrats for one another, there was one note of discord.

Rep. Clement Zablocki, the congressman from Milwaukee who has sided with Nixon on Vietnam, was virtually ignored as politicians circulated prior to the program and was booed by some when he was introduced. He departed early from the head table.

Saigon forces —

Some strategy hard to figure

He put his hand on the map, pointing to a 15-mile-wide swath of unpopulated, scrubby terrain between the Michelin rubber plantation and the district town of Ben Cat.

"I just can't understand what the South Vietnamese are doing. The NVA can march abreast in columns and sing on their way to Saigon, and we wouldn't even know it until they run into the villagers. We should be fighting them up here and not among the people."

Like most other American officers, he feels that a great mistake is being made in not patrolling and searching the hinterlands of the war zones.

All the advantages that were gained by the American invasion of Cambodia in 1970 were lost when the last of the Saigon troops were thrown out of eastern Cambodia two weeks ago. Now, by not patrolling in depth, the South Vietnamese have yielded the communists old war zone sanctuaries.

District chiefs have been ordered to prepare for conventional warfare, a North Vietnamese invasion rather than hit-and-run guerrilla actions. Some troops are being trained to use antitank weapons. Plans have been drawn up to mass the Popular Force platoons and Regional Force companies into larger military formations under a central command.

What upsets many Vietnamese, especially military officers, more than the potential enemy threat from the nearby jungles and Cambodia is the continuously bad news from the northern fronts.

No panic is noticeable. The annual Route One bicycle race was held last week over what was left of the highway.

Fond du Lac man named president of Wisconsin CEC

GREEN LAKE, Wis. (AP) — Robert Rucks, civil service director at Fond du Lac, was installed as president of the Wisconsin federation of the Council for Exceptional Children (CEC).

The annual convention ended Friday evening and was attended by about 400 persons, mostly teachers and administrators involved in instruction of retarded, emotionally disturbed and physically handicapped children.

William C. Kahl, state superintendent of public instruction, urged delegates to seek public response to efforts of a state task force studying educational planning for all Wisconsin children.

Outgoing president was Dr. George Stockton, professor of special education at University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh.

A GRAFFITI EPIDEMIC
NEW YORK (AP) — There's a new epidemic in this city. It's called graffiti and scrawls on subway walls and trains are noticeable almost everywhere.

Frank T. Berry, a Transit Authority official, says it costs the city more than half a million dollars a year to remove the scrawls. Most of the markings are drawn by teen-agers using felt-tipped pens.

Here in our part of the country most folks want to be known as dependable. They stand behind the goods and services they provide one another. They give their best on the job every day. And they seek to be the dependable kind of friend or neighbor others can really count on.

Your NSP neighbors who serve here in our great northern states want to be known as dependable people too. In a personal sense, and as public servants who take seriously their responsibility to provide dependable electric energy, reliably served where and when you need it with the least possible impact on environment.

Maybe there are other ways of being dependable that you think NSP ought to consider. We'd like to hear from you. New ideas are welcome.

Injury of youth mars Walk for Development

Saturday's Walk For Development was marred when one of the participants, 13-year-old Brian Krings, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Krings, 712 W. King St., was struck by a car driven by Miss Barbara Meyer, 18, 421 Mankato Ave.

According to police, Miss Meyer was passing a group of the marchers when several of them jumped on the hood of her car. Someone yelled for her to stop and when she applied the brakes Brian fell off and was dragged approximately nine feet before the vehicle came to a stop.

Brian was still in the hospital this morning, listed by authorities as in satisfactory condition. His mother said that the doctor had told her son that when a deep cut to the inside right knee had sufficiently healed, he would be released.

THE ACCIDENT occurred at 12:40 p.m. in front of the East Lake Blvd. home of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Hardt, .6 of a mile west of Mankato Avenue. Several of the marchers appeared at their front door and requested that Mrs. Hardt call an ambulance. Mr. Hardt provided a blanket and pillows for the boy prior to the arrival of Praxel Ambulance.

Mrs. Hardt commented that on two occasions earlier, when she and her husband were driving along the route of the Walk, that the marchers as a group behaved in a "very careless manner" and that they had to slow down several times and use their horn to clear marchers from in front of their car.

Leslie Lotquist, march organizer, thought that overall the marchers were a well-controlled crowd and noted that 250 litter bags had been provided so that refuse from the march would be collected. Area residents commented that in comparison to last year's march there had been little, if any, littering from the participants.

RECEIPTS FROM the pledged sponsors of the walk have not been completely counted, but Lotquist estimated $9,200 has been raised for a variety of projects with 260 out of the 621 marchers who started completing the 25-mile hike. He expressed appreciation to the citizens of Winona for their cooperation in making the march possible by their support of the walkers.

The Rev. Frederick Dorn finished eleventh among the field of youthful area participants. The 71-year-old chaplain of St. Anne Hospice has been a long-time hiking devotee and said that he admired the "spirit of endurance" shown by the youngsters.

Belt sander has power plus

By ANDY LANG
A portable power tool is one that is operated electrically and can be carried to the material being worked on.
In the case of a portable belt sander, the reference to power has a second meaning. For the belt sander is a power-plus machine—the heavy-duty work-horse of the portable sander field. It is intended for rugged work and is especially useful in sanding down large surfaces, such as sheets of plywood.

An abrasive belt runs continuously over pulley or drums at both ends. Changing the belt is a simple operation, although varying with different makes. Sanding belts are spliced and have designations on the inside to show which way they should be installed so that the splices will not break.

In using a belt sander, it is important that the machine be in operation before touching the work surface. Once it has gained momentum, it is lowered slowly so that the back part of the belt touches first, after which the belt is quickly brought to a horizontal position as it is moved forward. From there on it's a case of guiding the sander back and forth in a sort of stroking motion with very little pressure. To avoid taking off too much in one spot, never leave the machine on the surface unless it is moving either backwards or forwards. And when you are ready to stop, either permanently or for a moment's rest, don't turn off the motor until the sander is off the work.

Extra caution is necessary at the edges and corners of the material being sanded. If the sander is pushed too far, it will begin to tilt over the edges and take off too much wood.

The belt sander is sometimes used for removing old paint and varnish. Be sure to use open-grit belts for this operation. As the finish is pulled off, it has a tendency to become a little gummy, clogging the abrasive even though the open-grit style is intended to minimize this effect. Some of this clogging can be avoided if you use shorter strokes than usual and if you begin at the far end of the surface and work towards yourself. The machine should be lifted at the end of each stroke so that it is not immediately placed down again on a spot that has started to soften.

Because the belt sander is so powerful, you should get the hang of it before you begin using it for more delicate work than rough sanding and paint removing. Once you have discovered what it can do, it can be tried as a finishing tool; that is, for the final sanding of a surface. A fine abrasive belt must be used. In making a selection, tell your dealer what it is being used for so that he can help you choose the right kind. There are various other types of belts for special operations, among them the polishing of plastics and other materials.

Disney officials set expansion program for complex in Florida

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Walt Disney World officials have announced a multimillion dollar expansion program for the $400 million amusement complex.

Dick Nunis, executive vice president of the tourist attraction, made the announcement Friday at a luncheon of the Florida Press Association.

Nunis said a space exploration display and a new Western frontier pavilion were part of the project.

Officials said the complex is expected to spend about $50 million in development costs during a period from October 1972 to October 1973.

Nunis said he expected Walt Disney World's attendance to exceed 10 million in its first year, and added "with that kind of volume our expansions will have to be much faster than anticipated."

Wounded eagle healing but he'll never fly again

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Baldy, the wounded American bald eagle, will never again soar to the skies in the tradition of his ancestors.

His wing, punctured by several shotgun pellets when two boys found him walking along U.S. 17, has healed after three months treatment by Dr. F. L. Peacock.

But the Jacksonville veterinarian says Baldy had an allergic reaction to a pin used in mending the wing and he can only fly short distances because of an "arthritic wrist."

Peacock said the eagle will be sent to a wildlife preserve in Laurel, Md. U.S. wildlife officers there will attempt to breed him with other eagles already there. They hope to help preserve a vanishing species.

Seven other eagles from Florida have been sent to the preserve, Peacock said.

The St. Lawrence Seaway is 2,342 miles long.

Heart research center planned

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Construction plans for a $9.5 million cardiovascular research and training center at the University of Minnesota were announced today by the university and the Variety Club of the Northwest.

The center, a five-story structure containing 70,000 feet of research laboratory space, is expected to open in June 1974. The Variety Club is acting as a fund-raising agency.

Dr. Robert L. Vernier, planning director of the project and pediatrics professor at the university, said the center will operate as an interdisciplinary research facility.

Planning of the center has involved the colleges of medicine, engineering and biological sciences and the school of public health. Researchers brought together at the center will include biochemists, engineers, surgeons, immunologists and cardiologists.

"It will offer an opportunity for cooperative research and cross-stimulation, provided in a setting that does not now exist on the campus and is available at only a few other universities," Dr. Vernier said.

Counter adds patio appeal

When the weather turns warm and the air indoors seems stuffy and confining, most families head outdoors to work, play, and relax while the sun shines.

An open, air life-style develops with the season, especially when entertaining moves outdoors and yardwork seconds housework as a prime concern.

Pick-up lunches and barbecue suppers multiply, for convenience and to take advantage of the coolest spot, the garden aromas. An innovation, the outdoor refreshment center has practical appeal when snacks and cold drinks are in demand.

IT MAY be quite a simple project, a serving counter with cupboards below for tableware and barbecue accessories, but location is all-important. A kitchen/dining deck is a likely site, and if the counter is built out from the house wall, it may also serve as a divider between patio table and the busy area off the kitchen.

One home recently visited was beautifully geared to its active family with a plumbed-in serving bar off the dining patio — great for keeping guests outside for pre-dinner drinks or serving a buffet brunch.

A wet bar isn't essential but if a water line is accessible, a drain may be hidden under a wood deck. Not just for entertaining, this addition will eliminate a thirsty gardener's compost trail, or, if there's a backyard pool keep, drip-dry swimmers out of the kitchen.

BUILT between house and garage, the counter has sides-of 1x8-inch western pine boards overlaid with 1x2-inch battens and stained cocoa brown to match cedar siding. A tall section at its open end forms a doorway to the service court beyond.

Quantities of ice are just steps away in a freezer in the garage, and food and drinks are shaded by an attractive beam construction formed of 2x8-inch Douglas fir planks on either side of a 2x6, with 2x4-inch cross pieces supporting a section of slat roofing.

Los Angeles finally claims first NBA crown

Wilt's scowl turns to smile

By JACK STEVENSON.
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain's scowl could scare a bear, but he wore a smile of satisfaction when he said, "I think that winning this title should make life a little easier for me."

The 7-foot-1-inch captain of the Los Angeles Lakers relaxed today in his $1.5 million home and the easier life to which he referred reflected acceptance as a team player.

He blocked shots, scored 24 points and hauled down 29 rebounds despite a painfully injured right wrist as the Lakers snuffed off years of frustration Sunday with a 114-100 victory over the New York Knicks.

That gave the Lakers their first NBA championship since they came to Los Angeles in 1960 and their first since 1954 when they made Minneapolis their home. The margin in games was 4-1, four straight since losing the opener.

For Chamberlain, this was a big moment. He has been criticized during his 12-year NBA career and accused of not getting along with his coaches or fellow players.

As the Lakers won a record 33-in-a-row and total of 69 during the regular season, there was no such criticism. None came as they beat Chicago and defending champ Milwaukee in playoff games.

The 35-year-old basketball millionaire was named the Most Valuable Player. And it wasn't until late that it became evident he had sufficiently recovered from the sprained wrist suffered last Friday night in New York. He wore a protector usually worn by defensive linemen in pro football.

Los Angeles jumped out to a 10-0 lead and then found themselves 53-53 at the half. Their third quarter made the difference.

Leading 75-74, Happy Hairston sank a basket and then Wilt added a pair, sandwiched around a shot by Walt Frazier which he blocked. The Lakers had built a seven-point lead. The Knicks made one more run but it fell short and in the fourth period, the Lakers pulled away.

Gail Goodrich scored 12 in the final period and 25 for the game. Jerry West had 23 and Jim McMillan 20 as four Lakers scored 20 or more.

Harston, the other starter, had 13 points but was second to Wilt in rebounds with 14.

The 33-year-old West, who has won almost everything in the NBA during his career except a title prior to this one, commented: "I couldn't feel happier if we had won 10 titles. I was disappointed that I didn't shoot better, but I feel I contributed in other ways."

For the Lakers, the title means about $17,000 extra in playoff money per man. The losing Knicks get about $10,000 each depending on how many shares are voted.

Dave DeBusschere of the losing Knicks said quietly, "We played well, but the Lakers definitely deserved to win. They're a great team."

Walt Frazier led the Knicks scoring with 31 and Earl Monroe, pressed into service at guard, finished with 16.

As Goodrich said it for the Lakers, "It's just like a storybook finish. They key of the entire year was us working together as a team."

Which is the same thing said by Chamberlain who drew a standing ovation from the crowd of 17,505 at the Forum when Sharman took him out late in the fourth quarter, the championship assured.

Bay State Boxers capture roll-off

The Bay State Boxers captured the league title in the Westgate Action League Sunday by a 28-pin margin over the Bay State Blacks.

James Douglas led the Boxers, the league's second round leaders, with a 209-576 as they raced to a 1,004-2,805. The Blacks, the first round pace setters, carded 2,767 to finish as the overall runner-up.

GRACIOUS IN DEFEAT . . . Brewers' run drought ends after 30 innings

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The Milwaukee Brewers ended a 30-inning scoreless spell Sunday as they tripped the California Angels 5-2 with the help, perhaps, of Billy Conigliaro's new shoes.

Conigliaro is normally superstitious about his garments prior to a game. But he tried new shoes, and laced a two-run homer in the sixth inning.

He followed up with a double to inspire a two-run rally in the ninth frame.

Conigliaro had been batting .154, had hit once in 11 trips to the platter, and had struck out six times in his regular footgear.

He related he was headed toward the field prior to the game when he said to himself: "These shoes aren't doing me any good. I'm going to change."

He homered off loser Rick Clark, and doubled off southpaw Rudy May.

Winner Bill Parsons (2-2) was replaced in the seventh inning by Ken Sanders, who turned in his fourth consecutive save.

As a measure of Sanders' value to the Brewers, the club has only four victories in 14 games.

Milwaukee, having undergone three successive shutouts, got a long-awaited run in the third inning when Rick Auerbach singled and made the circuit on a wild pitch and two infield outs.

Bob Oliver's homer tied it for the Angels in the fifth.

Milwaukee went ahead again an inning later with singles by John Briggs and George Scott, and Conigliaro's blast after Briggs got himself caught off base.

Oliver's double and Leo Cardenas' single gave California a seventh-inning run.

Tom Reynolds' pinch double and an Auerbach single followed Conigliaro's ninth-inning double.

Three share 1st in CC tourney

A trio of golfers shared this weekend's Blind Bogey honors at the Winona Country Club, with Ev Edstrom, Dr. John Alampi and Dr. Larry Korda winding up with rounds of 70.

Jerry Peterson was in the next spot with a 73, followed by Stan Hammer, F. L. Zeches, Mike Gostomski and Neal Werner with cards of 74.

This Saturday will mark the first of the club's horseshoe tournaments with a shotgun start getting things under way at 12:30 p.m.

Cotter thinclads 5th at St. John's

COLLEGEVILLE, Minn. — The Cotter Ramblers finished fifth in Saturday's St. John's University Invitational track meet, but only seven points separated the Ramblers from a second place berth behind the winning hosts, St. John's.

The Ramblers tallied 30 points, finishing well ahead of the majority of the 14-team field, and just behind the top two, St. John's won with 46, followed by Rochester Lourdes and Minnehaha Academy with 37 and Austin Pacelli with 31.

Cotter got their best finish of the day from the mile relay team of Rich Smith, Sean Burke, Tom Wise and Tony Kleinschmidt as they led the Class M field with a 3:44.8 clocking, nearly two seconds ahead of their closest competitor — Minnehaha Academy.

Kleinschmidt and Phil Drakowski posted the best individual performances of the day as Drakowski wound up second in the mile with a 4:51.2 time and Kleinschmidt set a new school record with a time of 16.3 in the 120-yard high hurdles — good enough to tie for second.

The remaining Cotter points came in the 100-yard low hurdles where Kleinschmidt captured a third; in the 880-yard run where Tom Wise was third; in the 220 where Smith was third and in the sprint medley where the team of Rick Kleinschmidt, Mark Merchlewitz, Dan Kujak and Tom Clemens finished third.

Ae Dee Walton was the only other Rambler to finish among the top five in more than one event, drawing a fourth in the discus with a toss of 115-3 and a fifth in the shot put with a heave of 40-3.

The Ramblers see their next action on the track at Jefferson Field as they take on Wabasha at 1 p.m.

Engine trouble halts Boland

BELOIT, Wis. — Ron Boland, Winona, Saturday bent a valve stem in the engine of his Lotus type 61 Formula Ford road racing car and retired after one and one-half laps of his first Sports Car Club of America regional race of the year.

Boland started 18th from the grid in the rain-hampered five-lap practice race for his class at Blackhawk Farms. He moved up five positions in the first lap, but trouble developed shortly thereafter forcing him to drop out. Subsequent attempts to repair the car failed and he missed the ensuing 10-lap qualifying race and 25-lap regional race for his class.

Twins topple Red Sox 8-4 for 5th in row

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Red Sox have yet to break out of their season-long slump and that means Manager Eddie Kasko will be making some lineup changes to try to shake things up.

The Sox dropped Sunday's contest at Fenway Park to the Minnesota Twins by an 8-4 score, giving the Twins a sweep of the three-game series and leaving Boston with a sorry 4-0 season mark.

The Twins, enjoying their best season start ever, played their first night game at Metropolitan Stadium tonight at 7:30 against the New York Yankees.

Bert Blyleven, 4-0, will start for Minnesota in the first contest of the three-game series. Mel Stottlemyre will start for the Yankees.

Minnesota has won five straight games, 11 of the last 12, to lead the West Division.

In Sunday's game, pitcher Dick Woodson started a four-run rally in the fifth inning to break a tie. He singled, Danny Thompson doubled and Rod Carew drew an intentional walk to load the bases.

Then Harmon Killebrew hit a two-run single into the left field corner.

Bob Darwin and Steve Braun bounced singles through infielders for two more runs and a 5-1 lead. Braun hit four singles for a 7-for-13 tally in the three-game series against Boston. He is 20-for-40 overall for a league-leading .500 average.

The Red Sox' problem Sunday was the same thing as it was in the first two games of the Minnesota series—no hitting.

Boston jumped to a 1-0 lead in the first inning when Tommy Harper was hit by a pitch, moved to second on an error and scored on Carl Yastrzemski's single.

However, by the time the Red Sox scored again—in the seventh inning when Carlton Fisk reached base on an error and scored on Luis Aparicio's single—the Twins had already put seven runs on the board and the game was out of reach.

Boston edges Rangers, leads Cup finals 3-1

By DAVE O'HARA
NEW YORK (AP) — Maybe there's no such thing as a one-man team in the National Hockey League, but defenseman Bobby Orr of the Boston Bruins comes closest to it. Just ask the New York Rangers.

"We got another great game out of Orr," Coach Tom Johnson said in almost routine fashion after the young super star scored two goals and set up the other Sunday as the Bruins defeated the Rangers 3-2 and took a commanding 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven series for the coveted Stanley Cup.

Although playing with a bad left knee which probably will require post-playoff surgery, Orr appeared at his best, breaking his NHL defenseman's record for the playoffs with his 20th, 21st and 22nd points. He set the old mark of 20 in leading Boston to the Stanley Cup two years ago.

"That first period, Orr ran the whole show," New York forward Ted Irvine said. "Not only did he do everything, but when the other guys on Boston see him play like that it makes them play better. And then they start to go."

Only 24 and the NHL's most valuable player award winner for three consecutive years, Orr put on a show which left the Rangers, a partisan New York crowd and a national television audience in a state of awe.

Down 2-1 and prompted by Coach Emile Francis' statement that they had to win the fourth game on home ice in Madison Square Garden, the Rangers were manhandled by the Bruins, who can wrap up the series in Boston Garden Tuesday night.

Referee Bruce Hood whistled 18 penalties, including 8 majors and one misconduct, for a total of 76 minutes in the first period. However, the Rangers, who struck for three power play goals in the first period of the third game in New York Thursday night, were unable to collect.

This time it was the Bruins, who had managed to click on just two of 18 manpower advantages in the first three games. Johnny McKenzie spotted Orr with a neat pass. Bobby moved in and rifled a shot for a 2-0 lead.

What proved to be the deciding tally came in the 17th minute of the second period. With Boston short-handed, Orr intercepted a pass and went down ice on another give-and-go with Don Marcotte. Orr finally passed behind the New York defense and Marcotte put away a back-hander. It was the Bruins' fifth short-handed goal of the playoffs, tying the record they share with St. Louis.

Irvine scored for the Rangers in the second period and then Rod Seiling made things sticky for the Bruins with a power play goal with just 1:25 remaining. However, the Bruins clung to the lead, and victory.

In late model feature Dralle arrives just in time to take flag

By R.C. LINDEN
Daily News Staff Writer

FOUNTAIN CITY, Wis. — Red Dralle of Evansdale, Iowa, borrowed a car from his racing buddy Ed Sanger of Waterloo at 11 a.m. Sunday, didn't arrive at Tri-Oval until 10 minutes after registration normally closes and began the 20-lap late model feature 17th in a field of 17 cars.

Those events normally would be associated with dismay, certainly not success.

But the Iowa veteran calmly "went to school" during the first 10 laps of the race, found the groove he wanted to run and then began to charge through the field.

He pushed his borrowed Chevrolet into the top five with seven laps to run, took the lead on the 18th lap and won going away.

HE WAS probably thinking to himself, "Some days you just can't seem to do anything wrong."

But that's not the entire story. The first 15 laps of the late model feature were exclusively a Phil Prusak show. Starting second from the grid, the Eau Claire, Wis., driver opened a five-length lead over pole-sitter Gerhard Wollenburg of Austin, Minn., before the completion of lap No. 2. Then, when Wendell Kuehn of Rochester caught Wollenburg on the next lap, Prusak had seven lengths on Kuehn and was rapidly pulling away. It was obvious that Prusak was going to be the winner by a wide margin — just so long as nothing happened to his car and, 2) there would be no need of a restart.

The restart became necessary after Fred Prudohill, Winona, spun on lap seven, but it did Kuehn, and the rest of the field, little good as Prusak pulled away again.

Then trouble struck Prusak's car on the 16th lap.

As Prusak rounded the first turn it could be seen that his left front wheel was pointing in nowhere near the same direction as the rest of the car. And Prusak, now driving a car with a broken tie rod, slowed, letting Kuehn past.

NEARLY AS SOON as Kuehn took the lead, however, Dralle moved to No. 2, since, all the while Kuehn had been chasing Prusak through traffic, Dralle had enjoyed a clear shot through the high groove. The determined Iowa native literally came from nowhere to pass for the lead on lap 18. And that was that.

Kuehn remarked later that he had not chosen the best gear for the conditions and that, after being passed for the lead, his only chance was for Dralle to be detained in traffic. That didn't happen.

Prusak, although he somehow managed to bring his "squirrel" car in behind (well behind) Kuehn to claim third, was slightly unhappy with the day's events.

"That's racing," he said philosophically but also noted, "that's the trouble with driving a year-old car — parts get fatigued and then they break. I was just sitting there waiting for something to go wrong, and it did."

AS A MATTER of fact, Prusak had nothing to smile about after his heat race either, since he could finish no better than fifth — behind Ron Goss (Eau Claire), Darrel Zwielfel (Kasson), Kuehn and John Foegen (Winona).

In that race, Goss started fourth but took the lead on the second lap and never relinquished it. Back in the pack, however, a close contest for second eventually developed between Zwielfel and Kuehn (won by Zwielfel), and Foegen barely managed to outlast Prusak to claim fourth.

But the crowd of 2,000 didn't seem to mind the relative lack of excitement that the second late model heat offered, since what they probably needed most after the first heat was a rest.

In the first heat, Rich Olson and Dale Baker of Rochester, and eventual feature winner Dralle, put on one of the best exhibitions of the afternoon. The action began even before the green flag fell, as three false starts occurred when drivers attempted to jump the gun. Then, three cars — Olson, Dralle and Cecil Henderson of Dakota, Minn. — passed the initial leader John Kuri of Cochrane before the completion of one half lap.

For the next five laps Olson was able to hold a three-length lead over Henderson, but on lap No. 7 Henderson went wide into the dirt of the east turn, allowing Dralle and Baker to pass. Henderson re-passed Baker immediately and, Baker having none of it, caught Henderson again before the completion of the lap.

With Henderson out of the way, Dralle began closing on Olson, and Baker began closing on the both of them. With three laps remaining they were all bumper-to-bumper, and as many times as Dralle almost caught Olson, Baker almost caught Dralle. But no one was able to pass and they took the checkered flag in one all-enveloping cloud of dust.

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Don Iverson of La Crosse, Wis., shot a two-under-par 69 Sunday to win the Shreveport golf meet and its $5,000 top prize.

Iverson, 26, finished with an eight-under-par 278, two strokes ahead of the runner-up. "I may wake up tomorrow and not believe I won," he said.

The tourney at the par-71, 6,954-yard Shreveport course was sanctioned by the Professional Golfers Association for players who didn't qualify for the Houston Open.

Iverson, a La Crosse college graduate, was a National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics titleist in 1968.

He had won $11,000 this year on the tour but had not won a tourney as a professional.

"It is a tremendous amount of satisfaction to win, no matter what tournament," Iverson said in reference to the meet's secondary role to the Houston tourney.

"It is very important to the young players to have satellite tournaments," he said.

The only hit off Sutton, who walked four, struck out three and hit a batter, was Bob Bailey's clean single to right leading off the seventh.

After Sutton left, Jim Brewer followed with two hitless innings before Richert came on in the 13th to be greeted by John Bocabella's leadoff single, the second Montreal hit. After Ron Woods popped up attempting to sacrifice, Ron Hunt singled. Clyde Mashore was purposely passed after the runners moved up on Duke Sims' passed ball.

Richert then bobbled Mike Jorgensen's bounce back to the mound as Bocabella raced home.

he victory kept the surprising Expos one-half game behind New York and Philadelphia in the NL East.

The Phillies staked Carlton to a 4-0 lead in the third inning after loading the bases on Mike Anderson's double.

Greg Luzinski hit a two-run homer for the Phils in the eighth and Bobby Bonds connected for the Giants in the ninth.

The Pirates dropped a home run battle to the Reds 4-3 but won the game 9-6 with Willie Stargell belting a pair of circuits and driving in five runs.

David Moffit of Rochester staged a close race in the second heat; but Moffit ran away with the 15-lap feature.

Volkart started heat No. 2 from the front and commanded that position handily until four laps from the finish when Moffit, who had started seventh, placed himself immediately behind. Throughout the final laps Moffit applied constant pressure and actually edged slightly ahead on the last turn. But the final sprint was a replay of the preceding four laps. Moffit would close before the corners but Volkart would leave him behind on the straights. Volkart won the drag race to the flag with a victory margin of a few feet. In third was Ken Johnson of Goodview.

Volkart had so such initial advantage in the feature. Moffit started from the outside of the front row, while Volkart started seventh. Moffit quickly removed himself from the rest of the field and finished one-half lap ahead of Jim Schell (Rollington), who had passed Johnson for second on the last lap.

SCHELL had earlier won the first hobby heat, holding a wide lead over Glen Slawson of Rochester and Bob Jenkinson of Winona — both of whom displaced Winona Pat Duran from second place on the next to the last lap. Duran eventually dropped out and Ron Donahue of Rochester finished fourth.

Street stock action amounted to a pair of races between Dean Erdmann of Winona and Duane Strain of Rochester. Erdmann claimed a close victory in the heat after starting well behind Strain but Strain ran away with the feature after starting well behind Erdmann, who spun while in the lead and rejoined the race in third.

Tri-Oval's next scheduled racing programs are Tuesday, and Friday. Both programs will begin at 8:30 p.m.

For Dodgers' Sutton 1-hit effort for ten innings fails to win

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
Don Sutton's best was brilliant ... but not quite good enough.

"It was the best game I ever pitched in professional ball, and that covers eight years," the Los Angeles right-hander said Sunday after hurling 10 innings of one-hit ball, only to have the Montreal Expos edge the Dodgers' bases-loaded error in the 13th.

Elsewhere, Steve Carlton became the National League's first five-game winner with a 13-strikeout performance as Philadelphia rounced San Francisco 8-3, the New York Mets rallied in the final three innings to beat San Diego 8-6 in 10, Pittsburgh outslugged Cincinnati 9-6 and St. Louis scored three times in the last of the ninth to nip Atlanta 5-4. Houston and the Cubs were postponed by cold weather in Chicago.

The only hit off Sutton, who walked four, struck out three and hit a batter, was Bob Bailey's clean single to right leading off the seventh.

After Sutton left, Jim Brewer followed with two hitless innings before Richert came on in the 13th to be greeted by John Bocabella's leadoff single, the second Montreal hit. After Ron Woods popped up attempting to sacrifice, Ron Hunt singled. Clyde Mashore was purposely passed after the runners moved up on Duke Sims' passed ball.

Richert then bobbled Mike Jorgensen's bounce back to the mound as Bocabella raced home.

he victory kept the surprising Expos one-half game behind New York and Philadelphia in the NL East.

The Phillies staked Carlton to a 4-0 lead in the third inning after loading the bases on Mike Anderson's double.

Greg Luzinski hit a two-run homer for the Phils in the eighth and Bobby Bonds connected for the Giants in the ninth.

The Pirates dropped a home run battle to the Reds 4-3 but won the game 9-6 with Willie Stargell belting a pair of circuits and driving in five runs.

2 Warriors qualify for NAIA meet

ST. PAUL, Minn. — Jeff Bunke and Bob Brewington of Winona State turned in performances in the Macalester College Invitational here Saturday that enabled them to qualify for the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics track meet to be held in Billings, Mont., May 31-June 3.

Bunke, slender senior from Rushford, soared 23 feet, eight and one-quarter inches in the long jump to take first place. His winning leap — he earlier scratched on a leap of over 24 feet — not only qualified him for the national meet, but it established a new meet record, erasing the old mark of 22 10/16 set by Jim Bauer of the University of Minnesota back in 1968.

Bunke also managed a third-place finish in the triple jump with a leap of 44-5 1/2.

Brewington, a rapidly-developing freshman from Eyota, Minn., placed fourth in the 3,000 meter steeple chase with a time of 9:32.9 and set a new varsity record in the process. The winning time in the event Saturday was a remarkable 9:15.

But the top individual performer for the Warriors in the meet was senior Dave Oland, who has earned varsity letter awards in cross-country and wrestling in addition to track, reeled off two separate half-mile races in the identical time of 1:57.9.

He recorded the impressive clocking in the open 880-yard run but failed to place and later duplicated his effort in the two-mile relay, but Winona's team wound up sixth with a time of 8:03.3.

Oland also turned in a fast split quarter-mile time of 51.4 for his leg on the mile relay, but again the Warrior foursome was unable to finish in the top five. Moorhead State won the event with a record time of 3:18.

Jack Peplinski recorded his fastest time of the season in the 220-yard dash of 22.5 which was good for a fourth place, and two other Winona runners achieved the fastest clockings of their careers.

Senior Howie Cook finished sixth in the mile run with a fine time of 4:24.6, and freshman Gary Mueller was clocking in 50.8 while taking seventh in the open 440. The winning time in the quarter mile was 49.4 which meant six runners finished in a span of 1.3 seconds ahead of Mueller.

As a result of some confusion in the administration of Saturday's meet, no team scoring was available when the teams departed.

The next competition for Coach Myron Smith's squad will be Friday in a quadrangular meet at River Falls. The meet will start at 2 p.m. and will include Stout State, the University of Wisconsin-Superior, Winona, and the host Falcons.

Winona Archers convene season

The weatherman smiled on the members of the Winona Archers Sunday as they held their first shoot of the season under sunny skies. Beginning archers and those new to league shooting turned out Sunday for the qualification shoot — where scores are kept for placement in future tournaments.

The Winona Archers compete in the West Central Field Archery League and will be participating in seven tournaments this summer. The first league shoot in Winona is scheduled for June 18, while two special events — novelty shoots on July 4 and Labor Day.

Anyone interested in shooting with the club should contact president Robert Fratzke or attend the next regular meeting to be held May 24 at 8 p.m. in the Holzinger Lodge.

Dave Roberts of Detroit is the third brother to skate for Michigan State's hockey team. Previously, his brothers Jack and Doug won Spartan letters.

POLYSTEEL

Goodyear builds it with two belts of steel cord for long-lasting resistance to impact and penetration. (You wouldn't run over steel drill bits the way we did here — but the demonstration illustrates how tough the steel belts really are.)

Then Goodyear makes the long mileage easy to take, with a flexible polyester cord body to seal up the shocks.
